Reorganization of the police department is first on a program of complete change in civic affairs. Drastic cutting of interest charges on Vancouver's outstanding bonds and bank borrowings is demanded by Mayor McGeer, so taxes may be cut and prevent the further confiscation of property.

HEAVY SNOWFALL COVERS UP TRACK MYRNAM SLAYER

VEGREVILLE, Jan. 2.—Heavy snowfalls which have blanketed this section of Alberta are aiding the slayer of Alex Smolniak, Myrnam farmer, who was shot through the head with a small calibre rifle as he sat in his farm home before an uncurtained window playing cards with his family last Saturday night. Since the cold-blooded killing of Smoliak there have been two snowfalls in the district, the last covering the ground to a depth of one foot or more.

The snow has completely obliterated any tracks around the house and have also made the task of locating murder's gun more difficult. If, as is generally believed, the slayer discarded the rifle as he plunged through the darkness away from the shattered window, it may be spring before it is recovered, if at all, and the police regard the finding of the weapon as one of the major clues in the mysterious case.

GOING RIGHT AHEAD

However, R.C.M.P. detectives are going ahead with their investigations and are still questioning John Skrut, hired man on the Smoliak farm, who, according to his own story, was absent when the shooting took place. They are closely checking the story told by him and are working back over his trail, checking the time he said he left the farm and the time he returned and also where he was in the interval. Skrut has stated that he was in Myrnam, three miles away, when the shooting occurred at around 7:30 p.m., but according to some reports the police are unable to fill

HAUPTMANN'S WIFE TO TELL COURT OF ALIBI

Refuses to Tell What She Expects to Say On Witness Stand

FLEMINGTON, N.J., Jan. 2.—Mrs. Anna Hauptmann sat in a flower-papered bedroom today and winced as a clock on Main street chimed the quarter hour.

"No one can tell me what to do," she said.

Her black coat hung ready for her first trip to the little white courthouse for the trial of her carpenter-husband, charged with killing the Lindbergh baby.

ARCH-CRIMINAL CASE STARTS ON WAY IN COURT

Additional interesting pictures of Lindbergh and Hauptman as they appear in court will be found on Page 3 of today's Bulletin.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 2.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann, and Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, father of the child the stolid German carpenter is accused of murdering, sat within a few feet of each other today as Hauptmann went on trial for his life, but apparently neither looked at the other. The man the state charges with the crime was near the defence counsel table, his back to the spectators. He faced directly Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard.

Lindbergh, continuing his deep interest in the case, had a seat at the prosecution table.

On one side of Lindbergh was Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf, head of the state police, who has led the 2½-year search for the kidnappers.

Hauptmann's wife, Anna, sat in a rear seat as court opened a few minutes after 10 o'clock but soon moved forward inside the railing dividing the courtroom.

Supreme Court Justice Trenchard then directed the empanelling of the Hauptmann jury to proceed.

First talesman called was Lulu B. Johnson, a housewife, of Delaware, a bespectacled, middleaged woman with graying hair.

She told the court she had formed an opinion about the case and was opposed to capital punishment.

When she said she was against capital punishment, Prosecutor Hauck moved that she be dismissed for cause.

Justice Trenchard, in a kindly voice, questioned her on her views on capital punishment.

"Madam, you say you're opposed to capital punishment. It is religious or conscientious?" asked Trenchard.

"Well, I don't think it's right to take a man's life," she replied.

Justice Trenchard tried to elicit a clearer explanation.

Hauck finally challenged Mrs. Johnson and she was excused.

The state hammered away on the question of opposition to capital punishment while defence counsel tried to bring out any possible prejudices.

Two persons were excused be-

JAFSIE MUM ON TESTIMONY HE'LL DIVULGE

Man Who Paid Over Ransom Money Will Take Stand in Court

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Dr. John F. Condon, vouching for his reliableness in testify for the state of New Jersey in its effort to convict Bruno Hauptmann of the Lindbergh kidnap-killing, said today he regards it as a "dreadful ordeal," but will do it while if it results in expiation of the crime.

The 74-year-old retired school teacher, "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh ransom negotiations, withheld his opinion as to whether Hauptmann is guilty, but expressed hope he is nearing an end to the task he set himself two years and 10 months ago.

Sitting in his Bronx home, surrounded by members of his family, the man who has been appointed, if it times mysterious, figure in the case said he approached the witness stand on the witness stand confident that his motives cannot be impugned.

Through it all—and he reiterated that if he had to be recalled he is all over again—Dr. Condon said he had been fortified by the faith in him displayed by the two colonels —Charles Lindbergh and Henry Breckinridge, the aviator's counsel.

"They were like a beacon in a storm," Dr. Condon said.

He was silent concerning the testimony he may contribute to the state's case and made clear that not until he takes the witness stand will he say publicly whether he believes the former German machine gunner is the man to whom he gave $50,000 ransom, only to find later that he had been deceived.

Colorful Skyriders Get O.B.E.

When there is sickness or violence or death in the far north, there is a job for doughty, fearless airmen who know the waste lands of the Arctic and love the life. The King recognized the two most famous northland fliers in Canada in his New Year's honors list. He bestowed membership in the Order of the British Empire upon Clennell H. Dickins and Wilfred Reid May, both of Edmonton. To the country at large that regards their hair-raising aerial escapades inside the Arctic Circle as comparable with the feats of Lindbergh and Kingsford-Smith, they are just plain "Punch" Dickins and "Wop" May.

They are the sky-riding team-mates who made "mercy" flights common occurrence, whose daring in the episode of the lost party of Colonel C. D. H. MacAlpine in the early winter of 1928 and in the grim 1932 Yukon search for the "mad trapper," Albert Johnson, was front-page news for days.

The honors list contained two other widely-known aviation names, Squadron Leader Roy S. Grandy of Preston, Ont., and Flight Sergeant Harry J. Winny of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Van-

LIBERALS TO SEEK BAN ON TITLE HONORS

Motion Made for Forthcoming Session Reiterates Opposition

By THOS. WAYLING
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, Jan. 2—Coincident with the announcement of New Year's honors, including knighthoods for a Toronto distiller, a Montreal piano maker and a Halifax judge the Liberal antagonism to tinsel honors is reiterated in a resolution filed with the clerk of the Commons to be brought up at the forthcoming session.

"That in the opinion of this house the prime minister should refrain from recommending to His Majesty the King the conferring of any grade of the peerage or any other of baronetcy or knighthood upon any of His Majesty's subject resident in Canada", reads Mr. King's resolution.

It will be noted that the ban would apply only to titles; that the lesser honors are not included, which would enable the sovereign to recognize the civil service and men and women in all walks of life who have carried on distinguished services.

The present list created no stir in Ottawa. It had been expected that Dr. Charles G. D. Roberts, Dean of Canadian poets, and Dr. Roy Dafoe, the Callander physician would be recognized, surprise is expressed, however, that the apostle of democracy, Henry Wise Wood accepted a C.M.G.

CALGARY, Jan. 2.—"I don't know what I have done to warrant such an honor," Henry Wise Wood, father of the United Farmers of Alberta and moving genius behind the Wheat Pool, said last night when

CONVICTS SAVE 37 INMATES IN BURNING HOME

GAFFNEY, S.C., Jan. 2. — A score of convicts who aided in saving 32 aged and infirm persons from the Cherokee county home when it was destroyed by fire early yesterday, speculated hopefully today upon their prospects of executive clemency as authorities went ahead with plans for an inquest into the deaths of five who perished in the blazing inferno.

A brief statement from Governor Blackwood in Columbia, expressing sympathy for all those bereaved and promising a "fair and appropriate action when informed officially of the rescue efforts by the prisoners, fanned the hopes of the convicts, who included both whites and negroes.

Meantime, the survivors, most of whom were led or carried to safety through choking clouds of smoke by attendants at the home and the attaches and inmates of the nearby prison camp, were being cared for under temporary arrangements.

People Who Are ot Entitled to Receive Aid Will Be Struck From Relief Roll — Full Responsibility Placed On Inspectors.

Investigation into the civic relief department for the purpose of striking from the relief lists persons who are not entitled to receive assistance from the city will be continued, Mayor Joseph Clarke announced Wednesday following the dismissal of two more relief inspectors Saturday.

TO CONTINUE PROBE

"The dismissals were made on the recommendation of Mr. McKee (manager of the relief department) and I plan to continue the probe until all those who are not entitled to relief are cut off the list," the mayor stated. This action should have been taken a year ago, and I want it clearly understood that the dismissals have been made on the advice of the head of the department.

"It has been reported to me that there aremany people on relief who are securing aid through misrepresentation. This is going to stop right now. I understand that in the past proper reports have not been received from some of the inspectors as to the eligibility of persons for relief.

CORRECT REPORTS

"From now on inspectors are going to turn in correct reports in this connection. That is the only way we are going to be able to deal with those who are taking a dishonest advantage of the taxpayers.

"I have nothing against any of the inspectors dismissed. As a matter of fact I do not know any of them personally, and the action taken was in the interests of the efficiency of the department and the tax-paying citizens."

OLDEST MAN NEIGHBOR OF QUINTUPLETS

TORONTO, Jan. 2. — Canada's most famous citizens, the Dionne quintuplets of Callander, Ont., have been in the public eye since they were born seven months ago. But less than 10 miles from their birthplace is a man who lived past the century mark to become a figure in the news.

John Birch is his name. He lives at North Bay. His age is 111. He is probably the oldest person in Canada.

John Birch celebrated his 111th birthday on June 4 last, just a week after the quintuplets were born. He believed then the reason he had lived so long was that "they have no room for me in heaven."

He is a native of Sebastopol, a veteran of the crimean war, and has been in Canada since 1860. His eye-sight is so keen he was able to thread a needle on his birthday. He didn't even require help as he walked down some steps off a verandah.

New Year Toll Takes 115 Lives North Half U.S.

NEW YORK Jan. 2.—More than 100 deaths were attributed today to the observance of New Year's and the cold wave that swept across the northern half of the United States from the Rockies to New England. Automobile accidents alone accounted for more than 60 of the fatalities, while fires, gun play and other mishaps swelled the total to at least 115.

Among the dead was the three-months-old daughter of a Waukesha, Wis., couple, who was suffocated the coroner said, when her mother left the child swathed in blankets in a parked car during a New Year's celebration.

At least 11 of the deaths were due to fires.

Meanwhile mother nature was mixing a hodgepodge of the elements. Temperatures were moderating in the central west, while the cold snap hung on in northern states along the Atlantic seaboard, with the weather man predicting temperatures would not go still lower in parts of the east.

NUDE WOMAN PICTURE STAR FILM HALTED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—A German motion picture, in which the heroine appears in one scene in the nude has been subjected to the scrutiny of Motion Picture Department officials who will determine whether it is suitable for exhibition to the United States public.

The picture, called "Ecstasy," was impounded by the New York customs office after it had been denounced by the Pope and by Fritz Mandel, millionaire husband of the heroine, who is called Hedy Keisler. Mandel is seeking to suppress the film because of the scene in which his wife appears unclothed.

CANNERS KILL SMALL PLANTS

OTTAWA, Jan. 2.—The two leading canning companies of Canada have a policy of forcing down tomato prices "to discourage increasing production," the Royal Commission on Mass Buying was told today by F. R. McIntosh, general manager of Associated Quality Canners, Ltd., of Toronto. There was no agreement written or verbally, to bankrupt small, independent canners, he insisted, but the policy of selling tomatoes below cost was designed to discourage establishment of other plants.

President's Son In Auto Accident

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Jr., son of the president, was in an automobile crash New Year's night at nearby Wayne, but escaped injury, it was learned today. The driver of the other car, Edward Newman, 24, of Radnor, was cut and bruised in the crash.

Arraigned last night before justice of the peace Howard C. Harbison at Wayne, the president's son was released on his own recognizance for further hearing there on Jan. 15.

He explained at the hearing that he had been blinded by the snow and tried to stop when he saw Newman's car parked near a railroad crossing. He said his wife cried when he tried to stop.

DIONNES MAKE STAGE DEBUT

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The Dionne quintuplets are before the Broadway footlights today. They are not there in the flesh, but either fame is used to knit together the story of a comedy that is packing in the crowds.

...EASES ARCTIC

The Arctic, however, will take particular pleasure in the inclusion of the colorful Dickins and May and Sergeant-Major Frederick Alderton of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who is made a member of the Order of the British Empire in recognition of his services in the northwest.

"Wop" May has seldom been out of the public eye since he was honored in a fine fight with Germany's Baron Richthofen in the Great War. Later he met the Baron again in the air and was nearly given Captain Roy Brown, another noted Canadian pilot shot down the celebrated enemy ace.

BRILLIANT NAMES

As a passenger pilot in the Peace River country of Alberta after the war, May achieved a brilliant name. He won the McKee Trophy in 1931, the second year of its award, for having accomplished the outstanding service to aviation in Canada. In a dramatic flight from Edmonton to Fort Vermilion, he carried anti-toxin with which to fight an epidemic of diphtheria.

When the two-year "mad trapper" case is to have eluded an R.C.M.P. posse and escaped into the Yukon after shooting two of its fliers, May was called to the scene. It was he who spotted Johnson wreaking final vengeance on the deep snow and led police to him, dropping tear-gas bombs from overhead. He watched the end of that chase with Johnson's death and carried the body of the "mad trapper" to Aklavik.

ATTACHED SHIP

His most unusual task was a year ago when he acted as a sheriff's bailiff and flew off with a search warrant to Lake Athabaska, pinning the writ to the masthead of the motorship Mateh which was seen locked there. The ship's owners were attached for non-payment of wages. While the warrant is out the ship is used and not the owners.

Dickins made what airmen termed the most spectacular flight in the history of Northwest Territories aviation when he flew from Edmonton to the shore of the Arctic ocean in the search for Col. MacAlpine and his party of eight, missing for two months. He flew over Great Bear lake in stormy weather and discovered that Inspector Dickins was himself missing for a week, forced down by bad weather.

NOW AN EXECUTIVE

Also a former winner of the McKee Trophy, Dickins has turned more and more to executive work in aviation in recent years, but still is active. Like May he is a Manitoban. Wop was born at Carberry and Dickie at Portage La Prairie.

Romeo Girard, prison guard at St. Vincent De Paul penitentiary, was awarded the civil medal of the Order of the British Empire for the part he played in preventing the escape of several convicts during the prison riots of 1932. The 34-year-old war veteran stood on a burning wall, that had been fired by convicts, and held off the rioting prisoners until a ladder was drawn up for him by other guards.

Beatty Bros. Ltd. Representatives Hold Meet Here

Meeting in this city during Christmas week, representatives of the Alberta wholesale branch of Beatty Bros. Ltd., were informed that business for 1934 had shown an increase of 38 per cent over 1933 figures, which is slightly above the average for the business as a whole covering all its Canadian branches and stores, also foreign branches at London, Eng., and in New Zealand.

Information from the factory at Fergus, Ontario, showed that factory shipments for the year were up 61 per cent and factory employment up by 47 per cent as compared with 1933. The factory is working full time and has been for the last six months. More employees are now engaged in the factory than at any time in the present history of the company and some departments are working double shifts.

The number of factory employees at December 1, 1933 was 316 and at the same date of 1934 totalled 466.

Those attending were W. H. Sterne, Edmonton manager and manager of the meeting, who acted as chairman; H. J. Buckmaster, Calgary; J. C. Jaeger, Grande Prairie; W. W. Miller, Lethbridge, and the following from this city: William Potts, A. B. Bean, O. O. Watt, G. B. Mortimore and A. Bell.

A social get-together was held at the Corona, at which 26 including George Hewitt, of the Calgary retail washer store, were present. The roll call showed the total number of employees in the Alberta branch, including the Vernon subbranch at 21 with an average length of service with the company of six years and five months.

SIMPSON IS NEW MAYOR OF TORONTO

Former Newsboy Built Up Career By Orthodox Route

TORONTO, Jan. 2—History repeats as election returns last night designate James Simpson forty-seventh mayor of Toronto after first municipal election in the city's second century.

One hundred years ago William Lyon Mackenzie, printer, publisher and radical reformer, was Toronto's first mayor. His 1934 successor as chief magistrate is likewise by vocation a printer, Labor paper publisher and protagonist of social reform. Mr. Simpson counts not the lowly soap-box on the street corner an unworthy rostrum for enunciation of his ideals for the working class.

Born in Lancashire, England, Dec. 14, 1873, "Jimmie" Simpson at 10 years of age sold newspapers and at 14 was a Gazette. He got himself a job in a Toronto factory dipping metal products into enamel, but soon found his destiny lay in a "life of letters."

In due course of apprenticeship he became a newspaper compositor.

When James Simpson stepped out as city hall reporter he held right to his call in the Typographical union—and thereby hangs one tale of his success. Member of that strong arm of organized labor for 37 years, he has served for 18 years as vice-president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and for 28 years secretary-manager of the Toronto Labor Temple.

KING,S LIST HONORS SIX ALBERTANS

LONDON Jan. 2—Three knighthoods go to Canadians in the King's list of honors and awards issued here. Forty-four lesser titles are given, eight of them to women. It was the third occasion for Canadians to figure in the King's honors since the custom was revived by the Canadian Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, a year ago.

Philanthropy, devotion to duty, enterprise and heroism in the field of aviation, music, unselfish services won Canadians their place in the New Year's list.

She didn't want to mention the trial, she said, "for everything has been said that can be said."

The wife of the defendant has a front bedroom in the neat yellow frame home of Mr. and Mrs. William Opdyke. She takes her meals with the family.

Irvine Opdyke, answering the doorbell, waved callers away from the wooden verenda steps saying: "No visitors."

"That was in our contract. If it wasn't, people would come all the time and it would be like a flock of geese."

The Opdyke's daughter, Francis, is one of 21 women drawn on the jury panel.

Chamberlain took aim and shot the fox as it caught the squirrel in its mouth.

LINDY FACES ARCH FOE IN MURDER CASE

cause of illness, another because of illness to his family, while the prosecution used one of its peremptory challenges on a woman who said she was opposed to the death penalty and the defence one of its 20 such challenges on a man.

The atmosphere in the jammed little courtroom became hot and oppressive and Justice Thomas W. Trenchard halted proceedings long enough to order ventilation.

During a five minute recess the judge remained on the bench. Col. Lindbergh chatted with the prosecutors. Hauptmann sat quietly, hands folded in his lap, his eyes, for the most part, straight ahead.

DRAWS ATTORNEY IRE

C. Lloyd Fisher of defence counsel drew the ire of Attorney-General David T. Wilentz when he asked the prospective juror Walter Lloyd Gaunt, a Negro, if he could "get over" the fact that Gaunt's brother was a Bronx carpenter accused of the crime.

Mrs. Hauptmann, staunch backer of her husband's fight against conviction, sat unobtrusively in the rear of the packed courtroom.

LAUGH ON WINCHELL

Fisher questioned A. R. Heckman, a venireman, about the writings of a New York daily paper columnist. Heckman said he didn't read the column but that he heard him on the radio but "wouldn't let a man like that influence me."

There was a roar of laughter. Winchell was known as a reporter. Justice Trenchard rapped his gavel and strongly and gravely warned the spectators that any outburst of laughter must not be repeated or he would take steps to prevent a recurrence.

GAS BLASTS RUIN BLOCK: ELEVEN HURT

curred in the brick block across the street.

It is believed the explosions were caused by accumulation of gas escaping from a high pressure main which contracted from the sudden moderation after the extremely cold weather of the last few days. Flames flared along the boulevard as the escaping gas ignited after the first blast.

Fireman Buchanan was playing a hose on the burning street when the second explosion occurred and he was knocked down by flying bricks.

The second explosion was described as the most serious in the history of Medicine Hat, famed as the gas town of the west because of the resources to the surface of the ground and easily available for heating, lighting and industry. The block building was completely flattened by the single upheaval and the fire that followed.

All available ambulances were pressed into service to carry the injured to hospital and almost the entire medical staff of the city was called to assist in dressing wounds.

ENGINEER ENDS LONG SERVICE

CALGARY, Jan. 2—Bringing to a close a career with the Canadian Pacific Railway of 45 years, Bernard Joseph Goldsbrough, engineer of locomotive No. 2638, brought the passenger train from Edmonton Saturday evening into the city for the last time. "Barney" McGoldrick, as he is known, has been driving the engines on the northern Pacific flyer since 1914.

Many congratulatory messages were conveyed to Mr. McGoldrick on his retirement, and on his arrival on his last run he was greeted by Mayor Hickman and by local officials of the company.

Mr. McGoldrick is married and has one son and five daughters. His son is Joseph McGoldrick, defence man of the Philadelphia Arrows. Three of his daughters, Theresa Mary and Mrs. J. B. Smith all reside in Calgary, while one daughter, Mrs. Fred Hickman resides in Grande Prairie and the other, Mrs. Ted Jacques lives at Starr, Alta.

Sixteen years ago engineer J. George Monliaws also retired Sunday after 43 years' service.

56 DEATHS IN CITY PROBED

During 1934, 56 Edmonton people met death under circumstances that brought investigation by police, according to figures issued on Wednesday by Coroner's Officer Detective William McDonald.

Six died accidentally, 15 of them by their own hand, 18 met accidental death, seven being killed by cars, which resulted in manslaughter charges against three motorists, and 17 suffered natural deaths.

BONUS ISSSUE FACES CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2. — Two familiar trouble makers—the soldiers' bonus and the world court—today were ready to give the United States Congress which assembles Thursday a raucous greeting.

Relief and social security measures are high up on the administration program, and Democrats and Republicans look for some legislation to prevent monopolies.

Unshaken by President Roosevelt's stand against the bonus, veterans' organizations aligned their forces for a finish struggle in the new congress.

The powerful political influence of the American Legion was pitted against that of the White House today by its national commander, Frank N. Belgrano, Jr., who said the legion would continue to press its claim for payment.

Meanwhile, Democratic congressional leaders conceded the cash bonus bill would pass both branches. In what form and whether over a presidential veto, they said remained in doubt.

Hay Fever Routed By Washing Of Air

BERKELEY, Jan. 2—Of washing route hay fever and asthma, a University of California professor declared.

"A pint of dust can be removed from the air of a home in a single day," Prof. B. M. Woods, chairman of the mechanical engineering department, pointed out.

"Wash this air by sending through fine sprays of water," he said, "and the worst case of hay fever will practically disappear from any one living in the house."

NEARLY NINE INCHES SNOW COVERS CITY

Street Cars, Autos Have Difficulty As Drifts Pile High

Delaying street car services, putting one car off the track to hold up the Highlands traffic for two hours, a heavy snowfall here in with the winter ear and early 9 a.m. Wednesday had piled up nearly nine inches of snow.

As 1935 arrived, it appeared to be accompanied by a spell of balmy weather and midnight revellers were able to drive about the city without any discomfort from cold. By 3 a.m. Tuesday, January 1, temperature scored a high point of 22 above zero. From that point, however, the mercury settled slowly but steadily to a low glass to a low point of 4 below at 9 a.m. today.

TRAFFIC TIED UP

The heavy snow, which the street railway sweepers found difficulty in clearing, caused one No. 73 westbound from the Highlands, to swerve from the track at 95 street and Jasper about 7 a.m. stalling across both tracks and tying up cars in both directions. It was cleared shortly after 9 a.m.

Although many Highland residents waited for a long time for their car, while others walked, some help was given when the department backed a car from the Highlands from the barns and brought passengers out around the Exhibition grounds and down town by 118 avenue.

MORE SNOW FORECAST

A little more snow is forecast for today, with weather becoming colder, Thursday. Thursday's outlook is "fair and decidedly cold." The barometer readings is 27.66, increasing, while a northeast wind prevails.

To with the drifting snow the street railway's three sweeper cars were called into service shortly after midnight Monday and have been almost constant use since. A few cars were put behind schedule on Tuesday but there was no delay was on the Calder car which broke its trolley poll at 118 avenue and 124 street, at about 9.45 p.m.

Snowfalls were reported throughout the north today, ranging from two to four inches. Some low temperatures reported were Keg River, 45 below; Fort Vermilion, 45; and Notikewin, 38 below; Fort McMurray, 35 below.

in a blank between 6:10 and 6:15 that anyone else can corroborate this story. The first alibi witness that has been produced is now Skeletal, under a writ in Myrnam. He appeared to be acting in his usual manner, but the time was fixed at 6:15.

Two of the children of the deceased who were in the house, Stanislaw and his wife when the fatal shot was fired have also been questioned by the police.

BULLET DISAPPEARS

Another mysterious angle to the case is the disappearance of the bullet. The bullet allegedly crashed through the window, shattering the glass, and hitting the victim on the right side of the head. The police have failed to find the bullet, evidently struck a bone and came out the same direction it went in, evidently reversing itself in the process.

Since then the bullet has been lost. It did not penetrate the wall against which Smolniak was sitting, and it has not been found on the floor of the room. It is not considered possible that it again went out the window.

POLICE HANDICAPPED

Police have been handicapped by the time delay which elapsed after the slaying occurred and the time when they were called in. It was not until an hour after Smolniak had been slain that his widow mustered sufficient courage to go to a neighbor's for assistance. She was fearful that the killer was still lurking in the darkness outside, and it was not until 11 a.m. that the police were notified and they could not reach the farm until an hour later, giving the slayer a start of 4½ hours during which snow was falling, completely obliterating all tracks.

Following the autopsy and the opening of the inquest, the body of the dead man has been brought back to Myrnam and the funeral will be held there Thursday.

Thumbprint Used To Sign Portraits

ROME, Jan. 2—Albert Everett Orr, only American portrait painter ever to receive a white medal from the Paris Salon, has taken steps to prevent any artistic rackteers from chiseling in on his fame after he is dead.

Beginning with a portrait he has just completed, Orr is signing all his portraits not only with his portrait, but also with a print of his thumb, smeared with red paint. He says:

"Just think what arguments would have been obviated if all the old masters had followed this course."

Orr is at present working on a portrait of the crown prince of Italy and it is understood that King Alfonso of Spain and Premier Mussolini will also sit for him.

COLLECTION OF TAXES IN 1934 SHOW INCREASE

Total 90.61 Per Cent of the Total Levy City Assessor Reports

Collections of taxes for 1934 totalled 90.61 per cent of the total levy for the year as compared to 90.57 per cent for 1933, according to figures released Wednesday by Wilmot Walker, city assessor and tax collector.

The tax collector stated he was extremely pleased with the year's collections.

Payments during the past 12 months aggregated $3,918,950 as compared to $3,691,075 for 1933.

Classification of collections follows: figures for 1934 and 1933 being given in that order; land—current, $2,080,847; $1,963,189; arrears, $709,370, $612,546; business—current, $198,150, $210,577; arrears, $36,873, $29,573; personal, $45,000, $60,000; arrears of service tax, $120, $1,033; land sales, $38,597, $42,173.

In payment of $45,000 in lieu of the service tax was received by the city from the provincial government Wednesday. This is a reduction of $15,000 as compared to the 1933 total of $60,000. The agreement between the city and province in this connection is entering its third year, and provides that the provincial contribution will be gradually reduced over a six-year period and will be discontinued at the end of that term.

BOY KILLED BY HIS PAL IN MUNDARE

Frank Bandura, 13, Shot in Head By Rifle Believed to Be Unloaded

MUNDARE, Jan. 2. — Frank Bandura, 13-year-old Mundare boy, was shot through the brain by a .22 rifle in the hands of his chum, Donald Eckel, 14, who thought the gun unloaded, about 5 p.m. Monday. He died shortly after.

Frank, with four young companions went shooting sparrows in a big stable and later, when the gun was believed to have been emptied the tragedy occurred. The other three boys were Walter and Mar-hall Wytrykw and Peter Schelst.

After shooting sparrows in the barn for some time the boys went to a shack behind it, where they unloaded the shells from the remaining rifle. Donald Eckel took the ejector while Peter Schelest picked up the cartriages from the floor.

POINTED "IN FUN"

Eckel placed the rifle on the table and the boys talked a while. As the boys started to leave for home, Donald Eckel picked up the rifle and pointed it at Bandura "in fun," the other boys stated.

Frank warned Donald to be careful, but Donald stepped back and, as he stooped to pick it up, the gun went off. The bullet struck him in the left temple, went through part of his brain and came out, about an inch and a half from the place where it entered.

HELD BOY'S HEAD

Donald, acting quickly, dropped the gun and held his companion's head while he sent the other boys racing to bring Dr. J. N. Strilchuk. Bandura died soon after the doctor's arrival.

R.C.M. Police are investigating and a coroner's inquest, adjourned Monday night, will proceed at 2 p.m. Wednesday. Jurymen are: J. F. Hill, Mike Kerchiniski, Sam Polowaruk, John Bilanyk, J. D. McAlister and J. T. McCallum.

CITY BUILDING WORK INCREASES

Proving that building work is showing a slow but sure upward trend, 566 building permits issued during 1934 total a total value of $479,106 as against 581 permits valued at $438,565 for 1933, according to figures compiled by Leslie Marchand, city architect and building inspector.

Dwellings led the construction list, with 134 permits valued at $221,130 as compared to 84 permits with a total of $165,600 for 1933.

Classification of building work follows: figures for 1934 and 1933 being given in that order; commercial buildings, $73,075, $59,300; public buildings, nil, $9,500; alterations and repairs, $164,788, $110,575; dwellings, $223,130, $165,600; apartments, nil, $9,000 miscellaneous, $18,113, $67,590.

Few Year-End Traffic Mishaps

The first 24 hours of the New Year were singularly free from auto crashes, a much different story to that of a year ago, when the city's safe squad worked day and night satching up on their year-end increase.

The first man to see his name put on a 1935 accident report was James Ferguson, of the Three Hills district who at 2:00 a.m. Tuesday stalled his car on the hill, on 103 street and 98 avenue. Another accident, the number 2606 hit the stalled car, inflicting minor damages.

Four hours later Clarence Formoe of 10139 10 street won himself the honor of being the first motorist of many to come during the next 365 days to smash into a telephone pole. Formoe's auto banged into a pole at the corner of 112 avenue and 68 street. The pole was snapped off at the base and the car was damaged.

MINIMUM WAGE NOW DEMANDED

OTTAWA, Jan. 2.—Establishment of minimum wage rates for both men and women on all future Dominion government contracts for factory work, and far-reaching steps to ensure payment of decent wages to this class of employment were announced Monday by Minister of Labor W. A. Gordon. Government contracts for the manufacture of boots, shoes, clothing and the like, will be affected.

Under an order-in-council approved, said Mr. Gordon, provisions will be inserted in every contract which the government lets for factory work calling for:

1—A minimum of 30 cents per hour to be paid to all males engaged on this work, of 18 years of age or over.

2—A minimum of 20 cents per hour for all females on government factory work, of 18 years of age or over.

Males and females under 18 years of age to receive wages not less than those provided for women and girls in the minimum wages scale of the province in which this work is performed.

FOR ALL LABOR

These minimum rates will apply equally to skilled and unskilled labor. As unskilled labor will have the specific minimum, the specific minimum rates, the tendency will be to maintain higher differentials in wages for the skilled class of employee on these contracts, said the minister. Thousands of male and female employees across Canada will benefit as a result of the new provisions, stated Mr. Gordon.

In any province where minimum rates may be higher than those specified in the order-in-council, these higher rates shall prevail, added the minister.

CHANGE "FAIR WAGE"

The present provision in government contracts merely contains a fair-wage provision. The effect of this clause is that the present fair wage is the rate that must be paid, or where there are no prevailing rates the minister of labor empirically fixes the rate that will be fair in numerous instances. Complaint has been made in the past that the prevailing rates were unfair and the minister of labor has been powerless to intervene.

LIBERALS TO SEEK BAN ON TITLE HONORS

he was informed he had been made a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George in the King's New Year's honor list. "The honor I have received this morning is bestowed upon my co-workers as upon myself and I hope they understand that the honor thus bestowed upon me by His Majesty, is really the appreciation of the nation, not only for what I have played in the Wheat Pool but for the splendid work all those associated with me have done in an effort deemed to benefit the great agricultural industry of western Canada and therefore the country as a whole." Mr. Wood said the announcement had come as a pleasant surprise to him.

BLUE BIRD TO HAVE TRIAL SOON

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Sir Malcolm Campbell said yesterday work has so progressed on his new racer, the "Bluebird," with which he hopes to lower the world's automobile speed record, that he expects to be able to demonstrate it to the press next week.

"While we still can't be sure everything will go off on schedule," Sir Malcolm said, "it looks like we will be able to ship it to America Jan. 23."

Sir Malcolm Campbell plans to send his new racing car over the sands of Daytona Beach, Fla., in an effort to make a speed record of five miles a minute. His present record, established in February, 1933, is 272.108 miles an hour, slightly more than 4.53 miles a minute.

CARDINAL BOURNE DIES IN LONDON

LONDON, Jan. 2—Francis Cardinal Bourne, the Catholic Archbishop of Westminster, died Monday night. He was 77 years old.

The churchman was gravely ill with bronchitis just two years ago, suffered a serious condition for many months, and never regained his full strength.

Pronounced indications of heart failure were announced in a physicians bulletin Sunday night and Monday morning. Doors of the cathedral were opened and many prayed for the Cardinal.

Cardinal Bourne was a native of London, the son of Henry and Ellen Byrne Bourne.

An English memory expert sold his head for $3,000 so that scientists might study it after he is dead.

FRANCO-ITALO PACT GUARANTEES EUROPE PEACE

U. S. REPEAL STOPPED ALL EASY MONEY

Have Forgotten How to Handle Nets During "Rum Days"

ST. PIERRE, Miq., Jan. 2—The fishermen of St. Pierre have forgotten how to fish.

That's the strange heritage prohibition has left the people of this tiny island, centre of the Atlantic's great rum-running trade in the days when dry America was calling for—and getting—illegal liquor to quench its post-war thirst.

The story of how a people abandoned one of man's oldest callings is a short one; it's the story of easy money. St. Pierre's fisherfolk found it in prohibition.

For nearly three centuries they had been content to follow the industry of their ancestors who followed Jacques Cartier across an ocean. There was little to do here but fish, and that they did, content to live simply.

TRANSFER POINT

Then the dry era began. Thirsty Canadians and United States citizens must have their liquor, legal or otherwise. St. Pierre, where the law didn't care very much whence it came or where it went so long as the duties were paid, became a transfer station almost overnight for a huge liquor traffic.

And almost overnight life changed for the fisherfolk of St. Pierre. It was easier, and it paid a lot more, to handle liquor on shore than to toil at the fishery. Fishermen gave up their back-breaking work on smelly smacks to live well on land at this new calling.

WAXED PROSPEROUS

This went on for more than a decade, the colony and its people waxing prosperous with fine living, fine new roads and other improvements, and expensive new harbor equipment for the sleek rum-running ships to come and go more easily.

Then came repeal in the United States. In St. Pierre they called it the "fateful fifth," that day when American citizens could once more up to the bar and ordering legal drinks for the first time in 14 years. It meant they had to go back to the fishery.

SEA LOST LURE

But they didn't want to fish. They had lost their taste for it during years of opulence; the older ones that is. As for the post-war generation, it had never bothered to learn the art.

Government offers of free gear and a bounty called to lure many back to the sea. Those who did go out last year came back with poor catches. Somehow, they couldn't bring the cod in as they used to. And earnings were not enough to support families.

This winter, the government is handing out relief for the first time in memory. In the spring that will end and the men will go out to the banks once more. Perhaps the fishery will be good; and soon, perhaps, their halcyon days over, the fishermen of St. Pierre will have learned to fish again.

MORE RUSSIAN TIMBER GOES TO GT. BRITAIN

LONDON, Jan. 2—The Morning Post said today it understood a provisional agreement had been reached between Timber Importers, Limited, and representatives of the Russian timber export agency for a supply to the British market of 400,000 standards in 1935 at lower prices than in 1934 (a standard is 165 cubic feet).

The shipment would represent an increase of 50,000 standards over the quantity the government permitted Timber Distributors to import from the Soviet last year.

The Morning Post said it understood strong representations were likely to be made again on behalf of Canadian timber interests for a reduction of the figure. It added the proposed cut in price was said to be dependent on an increase in the quantity bought in Britain and was aimed at enabling Russian producers to compete more favorably with a formidable and growing rival: from British Columbia.

TWO KILLED IN WINDSOR CRASH

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 2—Two young men were killed here yesterday when their motor car crashed into a street car on Ouellette avenue. The victims were Robert F. Lever, 24, and Melvin R. Bright, 22. Lever died within two minutes following the accident and Bright succumbed to his injuries six hours later without regaining consciousness. A fractured skull was the cause of death in both instances.

Seven Fatalities On Streets, 1934

Automobile homicide showed a slight drop in 1934 from the 1933 tolls, it was revealed by figures released at police headquarters today by Sergeant Major Dan Fraser of the traffic squad.

Seven persons had died beneath the wheels of cars when the old year was readied for the history books, a drop of two deaths from the toll of nine the previous year.

The traffic squad investigated 1,962 accidents in 1934 in which 143 persons were injured in addition to the seven fatalities. December, 1934, saw 152 crashes, 15 injured and no deaths as compared to 113 accidents, 17 injured and one killed in December, 1933.

LINDBERGH : HAUPTMANN

A Candid Camera's View of Figures in "Trial of Century"

AT THE same time officials of his home state were fighting grimly for custody of Bruno Hauptmann, accused of murdering his son, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh explained his views for the development of aviation before the Federal Aviation Commission in Washington. In these three poses the candid camera reveals Lindbergh in unusual attitudes, testifying in an eager yet blithe, gay, smiling mood in which he has seldom if ever before been pictured.

HIS face ever stolid except when questions about the Lindbergh murder aroused him to fury, Bruno Hauptmann followed intently every move in the legal battle over his extradition to New Jersey. The candid camera reveals the uniformity of his expression, no matter what his attitude or concern of the moment, whether it be listening to testimony (above), testifying (left above) or studying the Lindbergh ransom notes (below).

AGREEMENT TO KEEP FRONTIER LINES INTACT

Minister Laval Leaves for Rome to Conclude Conversations

PARIS, Jan. 2—French Foreign Minister Pierre Laval will leave for Rome tomorrow evening to confer with Premier Benito Mussolini it was announced here today. The announcement was taken to indicate that France and Italy had come to an understanding and that the outlook was bright for a Franco-Italian entente.

PARIS, Jan. 2—France and Italy were virtually in agreement today on an entente to guarantee peace in central Europe and maintain existing frontiers.

On the basis of this understanding, it was understood, French Foreign Minister Pierre Laval was scheduled to leave for Rome tomorrow to conduct conversations with Premier Benito Mussolini.

The announcement of Laval's trip, after six months of delicate negotiations between Paris and Rome, was made today following a meeting of the French cabinet at which Laval, it was stated, had been given carte blanche by the cabinet to make all the preparations for his trip.

COMPLETE ACCORD

While official circles maintained the utmost discretion it was reliably learned the two governments had arrived at a complete understanding of the points to be discussed by Laval and Mussolini. These included the problem of Austrian independence and the maintaining of peace and security of central Europe. After the conversations a communique will be issued to the press by the two statesmen.

The announcement climaxed weeks of intense preparation both in Rome and Paris, with both governments showing a definitely conciliatory attitude toward major questions on which marked differences existed previously.

STRUCK SOME SNAGS

Last Saturday these preliminary talks had reached the stage where hope was expressed Mussolini would leave immediately after New Year's day.

The conversations struck several snags late Saturday and Sunday, however, which it was understood were not adjusted until after foreign office officials worked feverishly through New Year's day.

The major snag in the conversations, it appeared today, was the multilateral pact proposed by France to guarantee peace in central Europe. This pact envisages further guarantees of Austrian independence as well as maintenance of present frontiers and security in central Europe.

BLOOD SHED IN SAAR AT NEW YEAR'S

Feuds, Riots May Mean State of Semi Martial Law

SAARBRUECKEN, Jan. 2 — Bloodshed ushered the New Year into the Saar. Three persons were known to have been badly wounded in riots and attempted assassinations.

Early yesterday several men rapped on the door of a French mine-guard in Saarbrucken. The guard's brother-in-law parted the curtains of a window to see who was at the door. His wife stood behind him. He was greeted with a volley of pistol shots, one of which seriously wounded his wife.

The would-be assassins fled, leaving behind them a note pinned on the door which declared, "Death to traitors, happy New Year."

PRO-NAZI SHOT

A member of the pro-Nazi German front was seriously wounded in a revolver battle that started after a violent political dispute.

A miner was found badly wounded from knife stabs on a road near Ueberherrn.

SEMI-MARTIAL LAW

The Saar governing commission had before it a petition from anti-Nazis asking semi-martial law be established throughout the territory until the Jan. 13 plebiscite is concluded so as to prevent further terror and bloodshed.

Town Prepares For Centennial

STURGEON BAY, Wis., Jan. 2. — The centennial in honor of the coming of the first white settler to Door County in 1835, is being announced here by the Increase Claflin committee. Increase Claflin settled on this peninsula in May, 1835, at a point later known as Claflin Sturgeon.

He remained nine years before moving to Fish Creek. Prior to settling here, Claflin had lived at Kaukauna and Green Bay both of which were fur trading posts at that time.

Arctic Mice Guilty Of "Quadrennial Suicide"

Millions March Into Self-Destruction

OTTAWA, Jan. 2.—When it snows in the Arctic it snows white mice! Eskimos tell this to scientists and Dominion government officials who ventured into the "spawning ground of icebergs" on the Hudson's Bay company supply ship, Nascopie.

"Eskimos believe this because of the lemming, the Arctic mouse," stated Dr. R. M. Anderson, Victoria Memorial Museum, Ottawa. The lemmings' runways beneath were destroyed and they swarmed in millions across the ice. Not having seen them before the Eskimos believed they had dropped from the sky.

The museum has rows of cabinets resembling ice chests. From one of these Mr. Anderson took an exhibit of lemmings. Some had brown skins, others were white; they measured about five inches from nose to tail.

MARCH TO DEATH

"The banded lemming turns white in winter," the scientists said. "Every four years they march into the sea—a march of self-destruction!"

"They drown themselves?"

"In millions," was the astonishing reply. "Every four years they migrate, moving in swarms across the ice. They go out on the ice floes and disappear." This was one of the most strange and inexplicable stories in all natural history.

ARE FOX FOOD

"The year the Arctic mice migrate is called a lemming year," Dr. Anderson explained. In succeeding years white fox—which feed on them— were scarce. White fox were commercially valuable. Hence the study of the lemmings' habits.

"But the scientists still know relatively little about the strange habits of lemmings," Major H. L. McKeand dominion department of the interior's chief officer on the Nascopie's 1934 voyage said. "Scientists do not yet know why lemmings always march to the sea, near inland.

NO EXPLANATION

Charles Brower, Point Barrow, Alaska,' 40 years a trader in the Arctic, described a march: "They began in June. It took two months across their trail, north and south, and they were a week in passing the station. Then they went out of the ice in a northwesterly direction and perished in the sea."

Hudson Stuck, archdeacon of the Yukon, explained how rare the sight was: "I had lived in the interior of Alaska for 14 years with my eyes reasonably wide open and did not know such creatures existed."

The collection of lemmings at Victoria Memorial museum is probably the most extensive in the world.

2 INSPECTORS DISMISSED IN RELIEF BRANCH

Four Inspectors Now Let Out of Department— Three Appointed

Two more civic relief inspectors were given their "walking tickets" Saturday as Mayor Joseph A. Clarke continued his shake-up in this department. Employees dismissed were J. Petrovich and J. D. Bower, both of whom, as well as four inspectors in the relief branch, have been working on a day-to-day basis and therefore subject to dismissal at any time.

FOUR LEAVE

Four inspectors have been let out of the department since Mayor Clarke took office. The other two are William Murray, former city probation officer, Mrs. M. I. Latham, formerly with the relief clothing depot. Representations to have Mr. Murray and Mrs. Latham reappointed met with no success.

New inspectors appointed are T. A. Lees, formerly with the civic department, and provincial relief inspector, A. C. Stewart and Harold Wright.

UNDER-STAFFED

The relief department is at the present time under-staffed as a result of the mayor's reorganization of this section of the civic service. One vacancy was created when Thomas Newbigging, chief inspector, was appointed as Mayor Clarke's secretary. Another employee of the department was moved up to take Mr. Newbiggings' place.

NEW BARONETS PEERS CREATED AT NEW YEAR

Dominions Figure Largely In King's Annual Honor Roll

LONDON, Jan. 2—Three new peers; five baronets, 96 knights bachelor and 18 printed pages of names comprise those upon whom the king confers New Year's honors.

The honors list issued last night includes a larger number of Canadians than either the two previous lists since Canada resumed titles a year ago after 15 years, with three "sirs" and 44 other awards, eight to women.

The three peers are: Sir Henry Betterton, former minister of labor and now chairman of the unemployment assistance board; Sir Thos Fermor-Hesketh, for political and public services in Lancashire, and Lt.-Col. Sir Wyndham Portal, for public services.

The five new baronets are Col. Edward Ruggles-Brise, parliamentarian who took an active part in preparation of the Canadian wheat subsidy scheme; Richard Durning Holt, shipowner; Sir Harold MacKinnon, president of the world Sunday School's association; Col. Frank Simpson, president of the Royal College of Surgeons.

Lord Lnlithgow, chairman of the joint select committee which produced the plan for Indian constitutional reform that will be the basis of the New India, is made a privy councillor.

Sir Josiah Stamp, who headed the Canadian grain futures inquiry, railroad president and outstanding economist, is made a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath.

MANY FOR CANADA

In addition to the three knighthoods for Canadians, five out of a total of 11 awards of the honor of Commander of the Order of the British Empire distributed among the Dominions go to Canada. A total of 22 memberships in the British Empire order go to the Dominions, and of these Canada has 16.

COAST POLICE CHIEF QUITS HIS POSITION

VANCOUVER, Jan. 2—Chief of Police John Cameron today had resigned his position. In tendering his resignation to the retiring police commissioner he said he was doing so "in view of the announced intention of Mayor-elect G. G. McGeer that he proposed to institute drastic plans of police reform. I feel my continuance as chief of police might prevent fruition of his undertakings."

The retiring commission accepted the resignation with regret and expressed the hope the chief's services would be retained in the police department by the incoming commission.

Mayor-elect G. G. McGeer, who takes office Wednesday, made reform of the police force part of his election platform. On his advice the British Columbia government appointed the royal commissioners of two magistrates and appointed two others in their stead on the recommendation of Mr. McGeer.

Man Gets 10 Years For Bogus Money

REIDSVILLE, N.C., Jan. 2.—Charles Baer, arrested here several weeks ago for passing counterfeit money, was sentenced to thirty years in Atlanta, but will serve only ten his sentences on three indictments to run concurrently.

Butterfly Born On Xmas Tree Edmonton Home

Positively the last butterfly seen in Edmonton in 1934, was discovered by an expedition headed by Howard Wilson, 12, of 9638 103A avenue, on Monday morning.

Young Wilson, accompanied by a chum, Douglas Ireland, who is visiting him from Red Deer, and Frank Stewart, of 9634 103 avenue, found the butterfly outside his house in a temperature of 20 below zero, making a brave attempt to fly.

The boys were as startled as the butterfly, but quickly recovering their presence of mind, the young members of the safari plunged into the trackless wilderness of 103 avenue and captured the butterfly, described in the butterfly editor's book as a "pale yellow" and known during his boyhood as a "cabbage," on account of hanging around cabbage plants.

The boys' story is that the butterfly was on the Wilson Christmas tree in the form of a grub, and hatched out after 10 days in the warm house.

VICEROY AT OTTAWA HOLDS BIG LEVEE

OTTAWA, Jan. 2.—Nearly 700 attended the annual New Year's day levee of the Governor-General today in the Hall of Fame of the parliament buildings yesterday. It was the fourth of such receptions held by the Earl of Bessborough since coming to Ottawa in April, 1931, as representative of King George.

Informality characterized the reception again as in recent years. His Excellency shook hands cordially with each caller. During the reception Robert J. Donnell, acting commissioner of police, selected from the Peace Tower.

First to pay respects to the Governor-General and Lady Bessborough were R. B. Bennett and Viscount Duncannon, elder son of His Excellency, after whom the latter is named, to the left of the Governor-General. Presentation of others prominent in the life of the Dominion followed.

LONDON HAD HOLIDAY REVEL

LONDON, Jan. 2.—England went on its biggest spending spree since 1918 to welcome the entrance of 1935 and the silver jubilee year of the reign of King George.

Thousands of revelers gathered in London hotels and restaurants, and thronging the streets, renewed expressions of loyalty in toasts to their sovereign.

The Prince of Wales came to London for the celebrations but the rest of the royal family remained in Sandringham. There, in a traditional ceremony, the King and Queen led the household in drinking to 1935 from a bowl of hot punch.

Edmonton Crime London for Lowest Ebb

The cold wave froze the crime wave over the New Year holiday. Only reports of minor break-ins disturbed the tranquility at police headquarters, which saw no new arrests made in a 48-hour period ending Wednesday morning.

H. Shaw of 14325 Jasper avenue, complained that thieves entered his home during the night and did damage close to $10 in their search for cash. They took a little small change and a few trinkets.

F. Orton of the Traffic Tire Service, 96 street, reported thieves had entered his business place by breaking a rear window and had taken a portable typewriter and an inner tube.

HAUPTMANN TRIAL OPENS IN JERSEY

German Accused of Baby Lindbergh Murder Pleads Alibi

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 2—Stolcal Bruno Richard Hauptmann, former German machine gunner, goes to trial today for the murder of Baby Lindbergh.

On the eve of the trial New Jersey authorities secretly re-examined attractive Betty Gow, last person in the Sourland Mountain house of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh to see the child alive and, who discovered the 18-months-old baby had been stolen from his crib.

It was she who batted and played the child in its crib. While Anne Morrow was preparing to retire about 10:30 p.m., she spread the alarm the baby had been abducted.

JURISDICTION ANGLE

Questioning of Betty came at the end of a day of conferences by Attorney-General David T. Wilentz and his assistants in Trenton in preparation of their case.

In the event the defence, headed by J. Reilly, of New York, challenges the right to try Hauptmann in Hunterdon county instead of Mercer county—which divides the former Lindbergh estate—Miss Gow may be called to testify she found a thumb-guard worn by the baby in Hunterdon.

TORE THUMB GUARD OFF

The state will contend the baby was either dead or dying at that point and that the kidnapper—it maintains Hauptmann was alone—tore the fastened guard from the child's hand as he ripped off its sleeping garment. This garment was delivered to Col. Lindbergh when he paid the $50,000 ransom.

Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, one of the principal defence witnesses, visited her husband in jail yesterday. Hauptmann's alibi he was not in New Jersey on the night of March 1, 1932, but was in the Bronx, depends largely on her corroborative testimony. She will testify her husband called at the bakery where she was employed and they drove to their home at an hour so late in the evening he could not have reached Hopewell by the time the baby was abducted.

MISHAPS TAKE 4 ONTARIONS

TORONTO, Jan. 2—Four dead and four injured was the toll Ontario counted today as New Year's day, 1935, was written into history.

One shooting two automobile accidents and three weighing mishaps accounted for the list of dead and injured. At Windsor Robert E. Lever, 24, and Melvin R. Bright, 22, were killed when their motor car crashed into a street car. They were believed to have preventes, the car from swerving out of the way of the street car.

At Niagara Falls, Francis d'Agostino was fatally injured when he was struck by a car, suffering a fractured skull after the sleigh on which he was sliding downhill struck a tree. Another fatal sleighing fatality was reported from Parry Sound, when five-year-old Ruth Hopkins was struck and killed on his tobogan and was struck by a motor truck.

9,608 Accidents To Workers Past Year Says Report

During 1934 there were a total of 9,608 accidents reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board of which 32 were fatal, according to figures compiled by officials of the Board. This is a large increase over the 1933 figure when a total of 8,050 accidents were reported, of which 21 were fatal.

While figures have not been yet definitely compil.d, officials of the Board state that both collections and payments will be progressingly increased.

Wheel That Broke Him

Ex-Millionaire Now Works At Monte Carlo

Staging His "Comeback"

MONTREAL, Jan. 2.—Many strange tales are told of the fortunes won and lost by the gay crowd which hovers about Monte Carlo and its famous casino but possibly none is so strange as the one related here by D. G. Ter-Asatourorff of Montreal, formerly attached to the Russian embassy at Washington, D.C., who has just returned from a visit to Monte Carlo.

The story is about a friend of Mr. Ter Asaturoff — a former Russian millionaire—who got himself a job at the Casino itself by the simple expedient of losing a mere 30,000,000 francs on the roulette wheel.

It happened many years ago and today the gambler has earned, working at the casino, just about half of what he had on a couple of turns of the wheel.

WAS WHEAT MERCHANT

M. Stackheiss, a wheat merchant of Moscow, owner of many ships which plied up and down the Volga, dropped his 30,000,000 francs on the roulette table in 1905. Smiling a cheery au revoir to his friends he went home to recoup his losses. Along came the revolution, however, and his wheat stocks, vessels and properties were confiscated.

The years went by and eventually he wandered back to Monte Carlo more to his amazement, he found a job waiting for him.

IS DEBONAIRE HOST

The syndicate which operates the casino had not forgotten him nor the tales which had sprung up about him since he had left and they offered him then and there what they termed a pension of 1,000 francs a month to lend his debonaire personality to the gambling room. He adds to his salary by taking the occasional twist at the wheel.

Frigid Nights Convert

Elect Stove To All-Night Tramping

Imprisoned Dukhobors

VICTORIA, Jan. 2.—How prison authorities on Pier Island, penal settlement for Doukhobors sentenced for child stealing, broke a strike without the use of force has come to light. The colony, which numbered nearly 600 inmates, was split into four sections—young men, older men, girls and older women.

As winter approached and the nights became cold, the young men were told they could have warmth in their quarters if they cared to put up a stove. The stove and pipes were nearby, as was plenty of wood.

"We are prisoners of the government," a spokesman said. "Let the guards put up the stove." The strike was on. The windows, out for the summer, were left out.

Several nights later a guard reported heavy tramping in the young men's quarters and investigation disclosed one-half of the contingent in bed with a double supply of blankets covering them. The other half, fully dressed, kept up the tramping back and forth to keep warm. After two hours, those under the blankets arose and the quick-steppers immediately slid under the warm covering.

Every two hours the men changed places.

Two days later, however, they apparently tired of it, for the stove was put up, the windows replaced and snores were heard instead of tramping.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2

ENOUGH IS ENOUGH

Trading in October wheat on the Winnipeg grain exchange is not to be permitted for a while. Explanations offered by Mr. McFarland, head of the selling agency of the wheat pools, and by Premier Bennett, are that the purpose is to prevent speculation in wheat which has not yet been sown.

The fact behind the news is that the selling agency has been functioning mainly as a buying agency, and is loaded up with wheat it does not know what to do with, much of it bought at prices away above the world level, with the Government standing responsible if it has to be sold at a loss. It is further Government speculation, not speculating by the public, the October ruling is intended to avoid.

The taxpayers will have no cause to protest the decision to refrain from adding a huge volume of prospective wheat to the enormous quantity of real wheat that has been bought at their risk. As the farmer does not know whether he will have any wheat to deliver next October, his interest in the ruling will be speculative rather than actual.

A DEPRESSION SURPLUS

One satisfactory New Year message. The Exhibition Association reports a net surplus of nearly $14,000 for the year, enough to wipe out its indebtedness to the bank, pay back advances from the city, and allow it to start 1935 with a clear sheet.

Some of these obligations have been dragging along since 1928. The Fair, for that is the big revenue-producing event in the year, is one enterprise that has not only paid its way during the depression but has pulled itself out of a hole.

With equally close attention to realities in the economic situation, there is every reason to suppose the city can continue on its way, and do even better as general conditions improve. The maxim "Bigger and better than ever" may have to be suspended for a time, or construed with moderation, but it has been shown the present standard of attraction sufficient to draw crowds in numbers large enough to supply the needed revenue. The Fair, despite the enforced economies of the moneyless years, is still "the place where town and country meet."

THE DAY'S WORK

A regular mail and passenger service by airplane has been opened between England and Australia, 12,000 miles, the longest air route in the world. The journey either way is timed at twelve days, and the first plane reached Croydon a few minutes ahead of time. The new service is acclaimed, and rightly so, as remarkable in itself and a potentially important new link in the net-work of Empire communications.

As an achievement in air navigation the fliers on the new route have fewer difficulties to contend with, and take far fewer risks than the men who, under and summer, fly from here and to Edmonton across the unpeopled wilds of the great northland, keeping the remote trading posts and the still more remote mining camps at Bear Lake in touch with the outside world.

Those whom they serve alone know what these men endure. The public hear little of them. An item in the daily newspaper states briefly that one has landed at Bear Lake and another has left Ft. Smith. The news occasions no surprise and arouses no alarm. It is only "routine stuff," the daily record of a service that is carried on in all sorts of weather, under tremendous handicaps, and with so few mishaps that the reader hardly associates danger with the gallant occupants.

There are no more wonderful fliers in the world than these men who wing their ways across the great lone land, where landing places are few and far between, and where the winter weather carries a menace unknown in the milder climes through which the new England-to-Australia planes operate. An Edmonton reader, who knows something of the conditions and what they signify, may well turn appreciative thought to these voyagers of the northern airway when he learns that mercury is 50 degrees below zero at points along their lines of flight.

NOTHING "SACRED" ABOUT THEM

One reason why the monetary system of Canada is due for a complete overhaul, and will get it as sure as sun-rise, is that blindness has been the reason to whom has been entrusted the regulation and control of the national money supply.

These money-controllers, who have also been accepted as the advisers of the nation on money matters, refuse to recognize that there are limits beyond which even a good rule cannot apply and cannot be made to apply. Thus they have distorted the doctrine that a money contract is "sacred" until it no longer has sense.

It is now being demanded that people do, as individuals and as taxpayers, what they cannot possibly do, and what even the pundits who repeat the doctrine must know they cannot do. Money contracts must be kept to the letter, be the consequences what they may, so runs the edict issued in St. James street and echoed by the Edmonton Journal. It sounds authoritative, but it is only silly, because it can't be obeyed and can't be enforced.

All contracts should be sacred, whether for the repayment of money, for wages, or for any other consideration. But to be treated as being sacred, a contract must first be sensible. It must be capable of being kept. It must be such that the man who is to pay will have no reasonable ground upon which to refuse to pay or to stop trying to pay. It must be such that he who borrowed will have to pay no more than he borrowed, and that he who lent can claim no more than he lent.

The reason people sneer at the "sanctity" of money contracts today is not that they do not believe contracts should be sacred, but because they know it is nothing but hypocrisy to attach the term "sacred" to a contract that cannot be fulfilled, which says one shall pay and another receive two or three times what was borrowed and lent. Such contracts are not even honorable. They may be legally sound, but they are not morally defensible. They are in defiance of all pretence of justice and fairness. They are simply statute-permitted swindles.

What the sneers mean is that this kind of money contract is recognized for the sham that it is. It will have to go. There will have to be such regulation of money supply that in future money contracts can be sacred because being capable of being kept, and therefore entitled to respect.

Poems That Live

SALVE!

To live within a cave—it is most good;
But, if God make a day,
And some one come, and say,
"Lo! I have gathered fagots in the wood!"
Even let him stay,
And light a fire, and fan a temporal mood!

So sit till morning! when the light is grown
That he the path can read,
Then bid the man God-speed!
His morning is not thine; yet must thou own
They have a cheerful warmth—these ashes on the stone.

—Thomas Edward Brown.

The world is used to Soviet killings. With Germany the case is different. Human life was supposed to be secure in that land. The orderly processes of law had seemed to be on a firm basis. They had a long tradition back of them. Kaiser Wilhelm's regime did not leave a legacy of oppression, brutality, and despotic cruelty as did Czar Nicholas. Revolution was violent and bloodshed in Russia. We don't expect it in Germany. That may be why Hitler shocks us when Stalin does not. Nevertheless, it is worth remembering that such bloody outrages are the only way in which a dictatorship can operate. Fascism and Communism are equally abhorrent in that respect. Each must maintain itself on the corpses of its opponents.—Vancouver Sun.

Premier Hepburn's prediction of only 30 seats going to the present government at the next Dominion general election may seem a bit far-fetched, and yet it cannot be denied that the same seer repeatedly foretold the result of the Ontario contest with some exactitude.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

Here's welcoming the readers in this New Year, 1935.

Unless the signs are all awry, the year 1935 is likely to leave remembrances. With elections at home and threats of war abroad, it may become a year of significant changes.

J. S. Cowper

Among some people, New Year is a time for making good resolutions. The making and proclaiming of good resolutions is a habit born of conscious weakness. The only resolutions I am going to make are those that can be sure of realization—to love my brother man more, to take my work more seriously and to invite tranquility of soul. I've lots of scope in all three attitudes of mind.

There is something in an attitude of mind. On Christmas Eve on a slippery down-town pavement, I saw two nifty looking cars skid and crash into each other. One car had its front bumper, front fenders, headlights and radiator smashed. The other fared even worse. It had both rear wheels completely wrecked, and the rear axle bent. It was the sort of crash that ordinarily invites a slanging match.

Both chaps, middle-aged men, got out, surveyed the wreckage and exchanged addresses. The first car was able to limp away under its own power; the second was a job for a wrecking truck. The owner of the first car was about to step inside when he turned back, offered his hand to the other chap and said: "It's a hell of a Christmas present I've given you, but here's wishing you a merry Christmas and a happy New Year."

One welcome Christmas present I received that deserves fuller mention in the column, came from my old colleague, W. A. Tutte, of the Vancouver Sun staff. Mr. Tutte is Mentor of the Douglas Social Credit group in British Columbia, and author of a booklet "Economic Madness and the Path to Sanity." Latterly he has been at work on a magnum opus—a 300-page work entitled "Douglas Social Credit for Canada." It came off the press of the Social Credit Publishing Co. of Vancouver in time for me to receive a copy for Christmas morning inscribed by the author "May our country quickly realize—and understanding, act."

After I have digested the volume and in particular the section on "How Social Credit Might Be Applied in Canada," I'll have a much more extended mention to make of it in this column.

Someone wants to know if the Attorney-General of Alberta followed the example set by the Attorney-General of British Columbia in a case where an Indian was wrongfully convicted, and remitted to Mr. Campbell and myself the fines (together with compensation) which the Supreme Court of the Appeal found were improperly imposed upon us by Mr. Justice Ives during the hearing of the seduction action against ex-Premier Brownlee.

"Alas for the rarity of Christian charity under the sun." Not only was the delicate hint not acted upon by Hon. Mr. Lymburn, but I am told that when our counsel, Mr. H. H. Parlee, K.C., made formal application for the return of the fines which the Court of Appeal majority finds was improperly imposed, before taking steps for a further appeal, the head of the justice department of the Alberta government refused to remit them.

The only other sporting offer I can make to the Alberta fountain of justice is to offer to serve out the "jail" sentence in Fort Saskatchewan which the Court of Appeal majority finds was illegally imposed on me, if the Attorney-General will refund the $100 fine which the Court of Appeal majority finds was illegally obtained by the Department.

Don't think this offer is made from any urge to become a martyr. I'm not of the stuff of which heroes and martyrs are made, else I'd have been dead the bars long ago. My offer is made in the interests of masculine pulchritude.

William McCormick, first commissioner of the New York police, makes a valuable contribution to the science of penology by suggesting face-lifting operations for criminals.

The Commissioner has observed that there are markedly dissimilar facial characteristic between criminals and non-criminals. He thinks many men turn criminals because their faces are so repellant they cannot obtain honest employment, and are driven to crime for a living. If they had their faces lifted to make them look like matinee idols, he thinks they might be given useful work and lead honest lives.

One of the leading paint companies on the continent has expressed the same philosophy in a slogan which reads: "Save the surface and you save all."

It would be a wonderful thing if one could put a chap like Al Capone on the operating table, round out his girth and carve a set of strong features on his face and make of him a second edition of our beloved premier. Baby-Face Nelson, caught early enough to feed him and mould him, might have been re-made into a useful, upright man like William Lyon Mackenzie King.

Real tough nuts who resist all efforts to improve their beauty, and who persist in a preference for strong facial characteristics instead of John Barrymore profiles, could be employed in jobs where they need not meet the cash customers, such as the writing of daily columns for the newspapers and other such semi-criminal occupations.

Commissioner McCormick seems to have opened up a field of great possibilities in his suggestion of beauty doctors for the boys in Sing Sing.

The city of Montreal is getting ready at last to pay for the long-continued extravagance of its municipal governments. To balance its budget Mayor Houde has presented to council proposals he estimates will raise $8,172,867 by new annual taxes. These must be submitted to the Quebec legislature before they can become effective, and if they are approved in anything approaching their present form Montreal will possess the dubious distinction of being perhaps the most heavily taxed city on the continent.—Ottawa Citizen.

Health For The New Year

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

New Year's Day has wandered over most of the calendar. For example, it began on September 21st among the old Egyptians and Persians, and after 432 B.C. in Greece it was celebrated on the 21st of June, while among the medieval peoples, March 25th was considered a good day for the beginning of the New Year. Our present date of January 1st was not accepted by most countries until the sixteenth century, and it began when the Roman Emperor, Numa, changed the beginning of the year from March to January. He added at, the same time two more months to the ten already being used, and ordered the first day of the year to be called Januarius in honor of Janus, the two-faced god who was supposed to be able to look backward and forward at the same time. Janus was supposed to be the special deity who presided over doors, and Numa thought he would be very suitable for properly opening of the New Year.

Dr. F. McCoy

While the date of New Year's Day has varied, nevertheless the spirit of the day has been much the same at all times and among all peoples for they all deemed it fitting to honor the day by wishing their friends a new year that would be both happy and healthful. As we now offer each other pleasant wishes it was once upon a time a custom to give gifts. The King of Sabins in 747 B.C. started the idea of the New Year gift by giving sacred branches from the trees sacred to Strenia, the Goddess of Strength, and his subjects also brought him these branches as tokens of good luck for the ensuing year. As history advanced, these gifts became more elaborate, and the Saxons, a proper offering was a fat capon. Another present was an orange stuck with cloves for hanging in the wine vessel. At this time it was quite correct to give cloves for they were very expensive, and held to be distinguished presents.

It is interesting that in Paris the custom still prevails of giving presents on New Year's Day, although most countries have switched this custom over to Christmas and have left only good wishes for New Year's presents.

The most significant thing about modern New Year's Day is the popular custom of making good resolutions. Most people feel that this is a splendid time to turn over a new leaf, for they look forward to the new year as a time when opportunity is going to knock anew; they feel that the time to "turn over" has come. The whole idea of New Year is that we make an inventory of our old habits and resolve to better them. The feeling that a new year is stretching before you clean and unsullied makes you feel that you are given a fresh, new chance to succeed.

The old year has passed, and the best way to bring about the good wishes that your friends make about you, for being healthy and happy in the New Year, is to resolve right now to start the day right, with right food and right living. Make up your mind that you will carry this resolution straight through the new year and I am sure that this year will be much healthier and happier in every way than any other year you have ever had.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Arthur I. inquires: "I notice that you prescribe the fruit juice fast for many different disorders and I was wondering why different diseases would take the same fasting treatment."

ANSWER: When a diseased condition is present the main thing to do is to take away those foods which have been used regularly, often in too large a quantity, and which have been interfering with health. Most disorders are due to over-eating and the best results are accomplished when the patient stops eating for a few days. I permit him to take fruit juice regularly but he is to avoid the three regular meals. This gives the body a chance to eliminate accumulated impurities far faster than when food is eaten as all of the energy is used in elimination and the energy formerly used in digestion is available to speed up the throwing out of toxic or poisonous material. The fruit juices I recommend are orange juice, grapefruit juice, unsweetened canned pineapple juice and canned tomato juice.

The Commissioner has observed that there are markedly dissimilar facial characteristic between criminals and non-criminals. He thinks many men turn criminals because their faces are so repellant they cannot obtain honest employment, and are driven to crime for a living. If they had their faces lifted to make them look like matinee idols, he thinks they might be given useful work and lead honest lives.

One of the leading paint companies on the continent has expressed the same philosophy in a slogan which reads: "Save the surface and you save all."

It would be a wonderful thing if one could put a chap like Al Capone on the operating table, round out his girth and carve a set of strong features on his face and make of him a second edition of our beloved premier. Baby-Face Nelson, caught early enough to feed him and mould him, might have been re-made into a useful, upright man like William Lyon Mackenzie King.

Real tough nuts who resist all efforts to improve their beauty, and who persist in a preference for strong facial characteristics instead of John Barrymore profiles, could be employed in jobs where they need not meet the cash customers, such as the writing of daily columns for the newspapers and other such semi-criminal occupations.

Commissioner McCormick seems to have opened up a field of great possibilities in his suggestion of beauty doctors for the boys in Sing Sing.

The city of Montreal is getting ready at last to pay for the long-continued extravagance of its municipal governments. To balance its budget Mayor Houde has presented to council proposals he estimates will raise $8,172,867 by new annual taxes. These must be submitted to the Quebec legislature before they can become effective, and if they are approved in anything approaching their present form Montreal will possess the dubious distinction of being perhaps the most heavily taxed city on the continent.—Ottawa Citizen.

On This Date

A Day in Canadian History

By FRED WILLIAMS

—o—

On this date, January 2, in 1889, Hon. Joseph W. Trutch, of British Columbia, was knighted. Incidentally as he had retired from public life in 1876 one wonders why the recognition was so long delayed. Mr. Trutch certainly deserved his title, for he had been a prominent figure on the Pacific coast for many years and one of the real pioneers of British Columbia.

Born at Ashcott, Somersetshire in 1826 he became a civil engineer and began the practice of his profession in England, but in 1849 California called and he was one of the thousands who sailed from the home land for the gold fields. He does not seem to have "struck it rich" as a miner, but he soon won a high reputation as an engineer, for when the colony of British Columbia was formed he came north and took service under the new government. He was responsible for building the celebrated Yale-Cariboo road and also for the first bridge across the Fraser river. He must have transferred to Vancouver Island early in the 60's for he was a member of the legislature of Vancouver Island in 1862 and continued to represent Victoria district in the union legislature, 1867-71.

The head of the delegation which went to Ottawa in 1870 to arrange the terms upon which British Columbia would be admitted to the Dominion, he was the first lieutenant governor of the province, 1870-76. In that capacity he was of considerable value to Sir John A. Macdonald, among other things arranging for the election of Sir Francis Hincks for Victoria in 1872 after his defeat in Brant.

When the German Emperor awarded San Juan Island to the United States and so deprived British Columbia of an important vantage point, Governor Trutch protested vigorously to Ottawa and urged that the award should not be accepted but Sir John was not taking the risk of war with the United States.

Sir Joseph earned his title even if he had to wait thirteen years for it. He died in England March 4, 1904.

A WEAK APOLOGY

When Mr. Rhodes a week or so ago explained to his audience in Halifax that Mr. Bennett had not been able to keep his pre-election pledges because of the depression, many of his hearers and readers must have recalled the naive and character of those promises, because he was most precise in the engagements into which he entered in his campaign addresses as the electors of the Maritime provinces. Consider for instance his statement at Moncton in the closing days of the campaign. After dwelling upon and lauding the past achievements of the Conservative party, Mr. Bennett went on to say:

"But you are more interested to know what the Conservative party is going to do now. It is going to find work for all who are willing to work, or perish in the attempt. It is merely to call parliament at the earliest possible date after July 28, and take such steps as will end this tragic condition of unemployment, and bring prosperity to the country as a whole. Mr. King promises you conference. I promise you action. He promises consideration of the problems of unemployment. I promise to end unemployment. Which plan do you like the best?"

Now can the amiable Mr. Rhodes reconcile that aggressive, cocksure declaration with his present apology that Mr. Bennett meant well but was debarred by circumstances from delivering the goods?—Winnipeg Free Press.

The Mail Bag

FORGET TOO MUCH

Editor, Bulletin: Your editorial on Christmas and its proper observance was indeed commendable.

In these times of enlightenment (so called) there are far too many who forget the significance of it all. They forget the God-man who was born in poverty in a stable at Bethlehem, who came to save a degenerate world, steeped in sin, pride and luxury.

They forget that His voluntary poverty and humility was intended as a lesson to all mankind, so that men should avoid the pitfalls that lie in wait for those who live only for this world, the selfish, the greedy, the worldly wise, the Herods, the Pontius Pilates, and the vast army of hypocrites that follow in their footsteps.

Let us not forget that it was Christ who, during the three years of his public life scourged the money changers out of the temple.

It was He who gave the awful warning that it was very hard for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven; that his wealth was only given in trust to him and that if used merely for his own greed and aggrandizement, he would be called one day to give a strict accounting of his stewardship.

It was He also who said: "What doth it profit a man if he gains even the whole world and lost his own soul."

Was not His denunciation very largely given against the social injustice of his time, against the plutocrats who waxed fat at the expense of the masses and especially the poor, and against luxury, pride and power?

Your editorial does a great service in bringing before the public the meaning of Christmas and the real meaning of this great feast of all feasts of the year, but how many public speakers, and public newspapers too, maintain a conspiracy of silence on these greatest of all questions which are shaking the nations today?

Were public men and the public press not so notorious for their silence on the greed and social injustices and persecution of religion so rampant on all sides, it is quite possible, and even probable, that the reign of social justice would dominate the nations of today, instead of armament races, the clash of sabres and that greatest of all destroyers, the money-mad dictatorships.

Do you know how many words in the English language mean "crowds?" Well, here are a few of them: a crowd of ships is termed a fleet; a fleet of sheep is called a flock; a flock of girls is called a bevy; a bevy of wolves is called a pack; a pack of thieves is called a gang; a gang of angels is called a host; a host of porpoises is called a shoal; a shoal of buffalo is called a herd; a herd of children is called a troop; a troop of partridges is called a galaxy; a galaxy of ruffians is called a horde; a horde of rubbish is called a heap; a heap of cows is called a drove; a drove of hoodlums is called a mob; a mob of whales is called a school; a school of worshippers is called a congregation; a congregation of engineers is called a corps; a corps of robbers is called a band, a band of bees is called a swarm; a swarm of people is called a crowd.

"My good man, you had better take the street car home."

"Sh! no use. My wife wouldn't let me keep it in the house."

New Year's Questions to the Prime Minister of Canada

By R. T. ELLIOTT K.C.

Section 1050 of the Criminal Code of Canada provides:

1050. (1) If any person who is guilty of any indictable offence in stealing, or knowingly receiving, any property, is tried before a judge or justice for such offence and convicted thereof, the property shall be restored to the owner.

(Under the definition in the Code property includes money and anything having value or giving a right to claim value.)

2. In every such case the court shall have power to award, from time to time, writs of restitution for the said property or to order the restitution thereof in a summary manner.

3. The court may also award restitution of the property although the accused is not convicted, if it is proved that the property belongs to some person other than the accused.

The questions to which answers are requested arise from published proceedings of the Parliamentary Committee Enquiry into Price Fixing and Merchandising Practices, now under the chairmanship of Mr. Kennedy, M.P.

From these proceedings as published there is prima facie proof:

(a) That tobacco prices to producers were deliberately broken down and the producers deprived of their tobacco below value;

(b) That cattle and livestock prices were deliberately broken down and the producers deprived of their cattle and livestock below value;

(c) That farm produce used in the canning industry was deliberately broken down in price to such extent that the canners actually paid more for the cans than they did for the materials packed in them;

(d) That the wage-earners employed in several lines of commerce and industry were deliberately underpaid and their wage-money in large part stolen from them.

Will you, Mr. Prime Minister, direct that in respect of each of the above conspiracies the conspirators be prosecuted and compelled to make restitution to the injured and defrauded producers and wage-earners? If not, why not? or,

Will you, Mr. Prime Minister, confine your activities to declaiming it is just too bad that people should have been treated that way, and that it must be prevented in the future—thus leaving the looters in possession of the loot and the producers and wage-earners without remedy? or

Will you, Mr. Prime Minister, ignore the issue altogether, and rely on your loud and earnest commendation of your own estimate of your own political services as being sufficient to cause the electors to forget the atrocities published by the Parliamentary commission?

An answer to these questions is an imperative public necessity. The Criminal Code is a law of the Parliament of Canada; there is no chance to shift any of the responsibility to the provinces.

The tariff, in the shelter whereof the looters operated, is also a law of the Parliament of Canada.

Therefore, from the man who now holds the leadership of the Parliament of Canada, the people of Canada have a right to ask whether or not right will be done.

NASH WIDOW INFORMS ON SIX OTHERS

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 2—The smartly-gowned widow of Frank Nash turned yesterday on the six persons with whom she is accused of plotting his rescue from federal agents and gave evidence by which the United States government hopes to send the sextette to prison for allegedly plotting the Kansas City Union station massacre.

Nash, whom she married under the name of George Miller, was killed with four officers here June 17, 1933, as machine-gunners sought to release him from agents who were returning him to the Leavenworth, Kas., penitentiary.

Mrs. Nash is still under indictment on three counts of conspiracy, but District Attorney Maurice Milligan has said the charges will be dismissed.

Mrs Nash was the second woman defendant to turn federal witness. Mrs. Vivian Mathis, known also as Mrs. Verne G. Miller, having pleaded guilty Monday to one count. She was also to be used to bolster the government's case. Verne Miller, killed by gang enemies, has been identified as a machine-gunner at the station.

WIREPHOTOS NEW MIRACLE IN NEWSDOM

Newspapers Publish Pictures Flashed Simultaneously With Stories

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Pictures and stories of the saliest news events of New Year's Day rode the leased wires side by side and with equal speed yesterday between 23 cities of the United States as 46 daily newspapers, in conjunction with the Associated Press, introduced wirephotos to American journalism.

The electric eyes of wirephoto machines raped the country from three A.M., E.S.T., when the service for transmission of news pictures by wire was inaugurated over a 10,000-mile transcontinental network.

They delivered these pictures countrywide so rapidly newspapers went to the streets with visual as well as verbal records of events thousands of miles away.

President Frank B. Noyes of the Associated Press, speaking in Washington, hailed the service as the realization of a dream cherished by newspapers for many years, and called wirephotos "perhaps the greatest single development in journalism since the first news dispatch was sent over a telegraph wire in 1846."

Can't Stop Divorce Wave Detroit Official Insists

"Restrictions Only Increase It" Says "Friend of the Court"

HAS DIFFICULT JOB

By GORDON SINCLAIR

DETROIT, Jan. 2—Saturday is cry-baby day in the big and busy Detroit a imony industry.

On that day, about twelve men definitely march into court and tell the judge they just can't or simply won't pay the alimony demanded of them. At the same time a dozen women, in no way related to the dozen men, are in court prepared to swoon, weep, scream, sob, or go into 40 horsepower hysterics as a means of wheedling a little more jack out of the once-upon-a-time husbands.

Gordon Sinclair

Between these infuriated brides and grooms of yesteryear sits Edward Pokorny, official dove of peace, wearing a brown sweater and a tolerant but worried look.

If Joe Dude tells the judge he can't possibly pay $12 a week out of his meagre $15.80, Mr. Pokorny gets up and points out that Joe must have forgotten about the raise he got two months ago or about the extra money he got from the magazine man.

Or if Minnie, the hat checker, is there to faint from hunger because of the meagre money she's allowed by that bum of a husband she once had, Mr. Pokorny is again on the defensive, pointing out that Minnie's husband lately lost his job in the brewery and is now reloading rifles in a shooting gallery and that does not pay so well.

NOT SURE OF CAUSE

Mr. Pokorny handles 20,000 new customers every year; not to mention his old standbys, and still manages to keep most of his reason and some of his hair. But he's not quite sure even yet, of what causes divorce.

"But they tell me you've looked into the affairs of 180,000 people seeking and getting divorces," I protested as this amiable dove of peace, expressed his ignorance of the real cause behind the crack up of the American home.

"Sure, I know that; probably 200,000 people," he agreed. "I know that from now on more and more and more people will be getting divorces, but I don't know why."

"What's your guess?" "Impatience, a situation apparently typical of the American. I know that money trouble and other women are blamed by competent experts for the sweeping increase in divorce but I blame impatience. The impatience of one party in a marriage contract, to overlook the small faults of the other. Practically every divorce and every fight between married people starts from some inconsequential little triviality. One time, when there were 60 men in the house of correction for non-payment of alimony they were paraded and asked just what started the trouble that broke up their homes. Not ten of them knew."

"But what's going to happen if this thing keeps on growing like a snowball going down hill?" "I don't know, but I do know that they'll never stop it. Records prove beyond doubt that any state trying to curtail divorce has actually increased it. They can, and have, put restrictions on marriage, restrictions on divorce, harsh restrictions on remarriage. None of those restrictions has resulted in a curtailment of any of the things they tried to curtail."

DESPAIRS OF CHANGE

"So we are just going along into a higher and higher divorce race, throwing more and more children into the streets without parents to guide or guard them?" "I'm afraid so. I despair of any change. Husbands will nag and complain. Wives impatiently say they don't have to put up with such a thing. The law defines nagging as a species of cruelty and man has no right to be cruel. The result is divorce."

"You don't present a very hopeful picture." "Maybe not. We don't deal in sentiment. We remove the froth of the love song or the ballad. We sweep up the debris of broken homes and try to arrange that the innocent victims—the children—don't suffer too much. It is at this season of the year, Christmas time, when we feel that our work is thankless and futile."

Mr. Pokorny has what is probably the most unique job on earth, and he created it himself 17 years ago next week. About that time divorces were running along about 25 a week and lawyers had to steer them through. The smartest lawyer wangled the fattest fees for himself and the quickest alimony promises for his client.

But that's all they were. Promises! Husbands faced with paying out more and more money to a discarded wife, skipped out or refused to come up. They do this yet, in practically every state but Michigan.

HENCE, MR. POKORNY

Women, at a time of prosperity, were deserted and left to shift for on the state for relief. The state looked for a man to straighten this mess out. He was found coming and going his head in the midst of domestic bedlam and hubbaboo. They put Pokorny, related him friendly of the court, and told him he'd have to work out his own salvation and details.

Since that time, a million dollars and 10,000 people a year have gone through his hands. He's the foster father of Detroit's illegitimates, the husband of the cities thousands of deserted wives and divorced wives. Never a breath of scandal has been voiced over his administration and he is soon to be copied in far corners of the world.

But it has its drawbacks. There is Mrs. A. for instance. She has three children and an ex-hubby who hates the idea of paying alimony. The court is the lookout for Mr. A. pretty often. During these spells when no money is coming in, Mrs. A. gets very angry indeed; bundles up her babes, marches them down to Pokorny. Hope springs eternal in the human breast. "There's my three kids . . . I can't support them. You try it!" Then the floutings and shouts.

RECLAIMS CHILDREN

Sometimes the people's friend takes them home for a one-night stand, sometimes some one else in the office plays Good Samaritan. But Mrs. A. is always tearfully back to report bakes on the morning. The kids seem to think it's swell fun.

Mrs. B. has a different approach. When her alimony doesn't arrive, she walks up and down working herself into a fine fury and their dislike and decides it's all Pokorny's fault. She therefore starts calling him on the telephone about midnight and calls every ten minutes from then until dawn, to find out why she isn't getting her rightful allowance.

Of course Pokorny, being an able man, has worked out some scientific sound-proofing gadgets for his telephone but these make the instrument useless for him every time Mrs. B. goes on the tear.

He doesn't mind her so much as the ones who come down and swear they'll jump out the ninth floor window unless the ex-husband comes through with the pay-off. No one has jumped out yet, though.

Mr. Pokorny has one word of advice for young men and women about to marry. It's "don't."

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

By CARLETON KENDRAKE

CHAPTER XLII

GRIFF completed his statement to Captain Mahoney of the homicide squad. "I admit," he said, "that I cut it a little fine, but I thought that when I told Fisher of the arrest of Kenneth Boone and of the girl who was known as Mrs. Andrew Ordway and Alice Lorton, I would account for his time for at least an hour."

"Then he didn't go to see Mrs Malone at all?" asked Bleeker.

"Of course he didn't." Griff said. "He wanted to try to get some message through to the girl who was arrested and he wanted to arrange to communicate with her. He'd get her out on habeas corpus before she could make too many damaging statements."

"Then," Bleeker said, "Fisher must have just been leaving Miss Buckley's room when the girl left it when saw him there in the hotel."

"Of course," Griff said. "Fisher had just drilled her on the story she was to give if she was questioned. Then he was coming to. Naturally he wanted to make sure that we were on the trail of the girl and also that he was present when she told her story."

"And Fisher was really the accomplice of Peter Malone?" Captain Mahoney asked.

"Yes," Griff said. "Peter Malone was posing as a business man who had sold out interests in South Africa and therefore had some cash to invest. His accomplice, whom we knew as Fisher, naturally shared in the resulting prosperity. The two men became prominent in Riverview. They had the secret of their past locked safely in their own breasts. Then Mrs. Malone happened to make the discovery that her husband was not the millionaire. Immediately she commenced to participate in his wealth and so did her daughter who had been going under the name of Alice Lorton. That should have given Fisher a clew, but apparently it did not. Mrs. Malone had married a man by the name of Lorton after she obtained her divorce from Malone. She, therefore, had no legal claim upon Malone's estate. It was a question of blackmail, pure and simple. The daughter, however, was in a different position. She had some legitimate claim."

"Then," Mahoney asked, "the marriage of Cathay was legal?"

"Yes," Griff said. "Mrs. Cathay is really his wife, although she did not know it. She knew enough of his past from the beginning to realize that he had probably left a wife. She knew his real name and knew that the wife's first name was Blanche. When Cathay died she moved heaven and earth to try to find Blanche Malone and make some sort of a deal with her so that the scandal wouldn't come out, and so that Mrs. Cathay could get at least a substantial part of the estate."

"And Mrs. Malone wouldn't settle?"

"No. She had been carefully coached by Fisher."

"How was that?"

Griff said, "Perhaps I had better explain from the beginning. The two men embezzled money. They became respected citizens in Riverview. Then the bank employed Shillingby to investigate Mrs. Malone.

"I shall continue to refer to the real Malone as Cathay, because that is the name under which he knew him. Mrs. Malone reported to Cathay that Shillingby was making an investigation and naturally Cathay thought Shillingby had discovered the secret of his past and was going to threaten him with exposure.

"Cathay's appearance had, of course, changed in the 20 odd years since he had been guilty of the embezzlement, a fact upon which he decided to capitalize. He talked it over with Fisher and they agreed that Shillingby must be killed before he could capitalize upon his information.

"In any event, it was agreed that Cathay was to kill Shillingby. In order to do that, however, he wanted first to have an alibi as Cathay. Second, to have it appear that Shillingby had been killed by a gangster. Therefore, Cathay, posing as another gangster, employed Shillingby to shadow the most dangerous gangster he could think of. He picked upon "Cincinnati Red" Lampson.

"Lampson had a gray Cadillac coupe with a dented left rear fender. Cathay planned to duplicate of such a car, kept it stored at a place near Lampson's headquarters. When Shillingby reported that Lampson to this neighborhood, Cathay drove up to the curb. Shillingby recognizing the man who had employed him, naturally was not suspicious. It gave Cathay an opportunity to shoot him and escape."

"And Decker," asked Bleeker, "the man who was a witness?"

"Was an innocent cog in the murder machine. Of course, Cathay needed a witness who could testify to the gray Cadillac coupe. So he trailed Shillingby, who was trailing Lampson, until a pedestrian was encountered. Then Cathay, worked his prearranged plan. He tried to keep his face concealed, but a chance gust of wind blew back the brim of his hat and gave Decker a glimpse of his features.

"Fisher was to take the name of Cathay, go to a hotel, register, keep an appointment as Cathay and cash a check. He went to the hotel, registered and cashed a check, but before he could keep the appointment he got playing around with Stella Mockley. They had a few drinks and the unexpected happened. Fisher was arrested. It became necessary for him eventually to assume the identity of Cathay with the police. That led to the publication of the story. Cathay had to make a gesture of suing for libel. He did not realize what would inevitably happen. The newspaper would start checking into his past.

"When that happened the men were in a panic. And there, gentlemen, is where we must give a tribute to Morden. Perhaps he stumbled upon the information. Perhaps he reasoned it out. I wish I could know. I never will know. If he reasoned it out, he had the brain of a marvelous detective.

"We know that Morden took a taxicab. That he went to Ninth and Central. That he went to Shillingby's office and asked questions. Undoubtedly Morden was shadowed. That trip cost him his life. The conspirators were in a panic. It was decided that Morden must die.

"They knew that Cathay would be suspected. Therefore, he must have an alibi. Fisher undoubtedly agreed to give him some medicine that would make him quite ill, so that he could be under the care of a doctor. That was Fisher's opportunity. He suddenly realized how much better off he would be if he could kill Cathay, stand in with Mrs. Malone, and milk Mrs. Cathay by blackmail.

"Fisher had been having Morden shadowed and, therefore, had no difficulty locating him. Morden was waiting for Alice Lorton to come in. Fisher showed up and produced a key to the apartment. Morden recognized him as the man who had been arrested and given the name of Cathay. Fisher clubbed Morden from behind, left the body in the apartment and slipped out.

"Alice Lorton found the body when she returned to her apartment. Boone helped her get rid of it. Alice Lorton probably appealed to Fisher by telephone and he advised her what to do. Remember, Fisher must have been both an attorney and a friend to her.

"In the meantime, the girl who had been with Fisher at the time he was arrested while impersonating Cathay became an important witness. Fisher undoubtedly intended to kill her, but he had her pretty much under his power. Therefore, he wanted to get her to tell a false story before she died.

"Fisher knew that Cathay had left his chauffeur a large bequest. This had probably been done for a reason. We may never know what that reason was. I am afraid that they would either murder the chauffeur or get him to skip out of the country for a large cash consideration. Therefore, I was anxious to hold him as a witness. The story, of course, which Stella Mockley told us about the mysterious conversations of Peter Malone over the telephone with the chauffeur at the Cathay residence, was made up out of much whole cloth. She had been carefully coached in that story by Fisher. When she had told her story, Fisher wanted her removed. He telephoned her to take a taxicab and meet him at a certain place. Then he took out the gray Cadillac which had undoubtedly been stored in some private garage near the scene of the crime.

"He intended to kill the girl and the cab driver and make his escape. After that he would be in an impregnable position, with Mrs. Malone blackmailing the money from Mrs. Cathay and Fisher getting Alice Lorton's share of the money. You see, Cathay had the money. All Fisher had was the law practice.

"When did you first uncover all this?" Captain Mahoney asked.

"I should have known it much sooner." Griff said apologetically. "I realized what must have happened when I began to realize that the man who had assumed the identity of Cathay must have done so with Cathay's knowledge, consent and co-operation. Then I realized, of course, that it had been done to give Cathay an alibi and that a man would go to such trouble to get an alibi only in the event he planned to commit a murder. I then thought back to remember if Cathay had been compelled at that exact time and remembered at once that Shillingby had been murdered at 10:15 o'clock.

"I knew at once what had happened. It remained to secure proof of that which had happened."

The criminologist sighed as he got to his feet. "Gentlemen," he said, "so far as you gentlemen are concerned the case is completely explained. As far as I am concerned, it will never be explained."

"If Morden merely obtained some clew," Bleeker said, "how could he have obtained it?"

Griff shook his head.

"I wish," he said softly, "that I could answer that question. The murder of Shillingby was the key to the entire mystery—and yet that murder was overlooked by all of us—all except Morden. He remembered the forgotten murder.

"Gentlemen, good morning."

THE END.

FACULTY DANCE

The Men's Faculty Club ball at the University was also one of the popular functions of New Year's eve, with many members of the faculty and their friends as guests. All joined in the grand march, following the striking of the clock at twelve before going into supper.

Women Are Honored In King's List

Eight Canadian women were honored by the King in his New Year's list for medical, educational and public services.

Dr. E. M. Guest, chief of the surgical department of the Women's College Hospital, Toronto, was made an officer of the Order of the British Empire. During the war, she did outstanding work in India and Corsica and with Scottish Women's Hospital Units. In recent years, Dr. Guest has given voluntary medical services to various Canadian women's organizations.

NURSES RECEIVE O.B.E.

Three veteran Canadian nurses also were made officers of the Order of the British Empire, Miss J. I. Gunn, superintendent of nurses at Toronto General Hospital; Miss M. F. Hersey, superintendent of nurses at Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, and Miss Jennie Webster, former night superintendent at Montreal General Hospital.

Miss Sarah Feeney of Montreal, with 50 years service to her credit with the Grand Trunk and Canadian National Railways, was made a member of the Order of the British Empire. She has been credited with never missing a day's work or being a minute late in her half-century of service.

Organizer of caravan work in Western Canada, Miss F. H. E. Hasell, Grande Prairie, Alta., received a membership in the Order of the British Empire. Under her guidance, caravans penetrated the lonely regions of the north west, bringing educational and medical services to settlers.

Two women in the Civil Service at Ottawa complete the list. After 33 years with the Department of Indian Affairs, Miss H. M. O'Donohue received a membership in the Order of the British Empire. For research in invertebrate paleontology, Miss A. E. Wilson of the Department of Mines also was made a member of the same order.

GAY FROLIC IS HELD AT ARMOURIES

the social round . . . .

The thoughtfulness of her boy made one Edmonton mother very happy this New Year. Last summer the lad was taken by his uncle to New York for a year. It was the first time he had left his mother, and it was hard to let him go.

So New Year's Eve mother was feeling very lonely—and sad . . . you see the boy's father is now sleeping in Flanders Fields. . . . The radio brought sounds of carnival and happiness from all parts of the continent—and New York was heard bringing in the New Year as only New York can. Mother wondered if her boy's voice was among the jumble of thousands of voices she listened to coming from that great city.

Then, at three in the morning that was already 1935 the phone rang. . . . A local friend perhaps, ringing to wish the old, old wish.

"Is that you, Mother?" Mother! . . . Her heart gave a leap. It must be a "wrong number."

"Who is this?"

"It's Jimmy, Mother."

"Jimmy! But where are you?"

"I'm in New York, Mother. I was thinking about you, and I thought I'd give you a surprise. Happy New Year."

"Jimmy—Oh Jimmy! . . ."

So Mother was made very happy. A happiness that blots out all sadness—a happiness that will last throughout the year. . Good boy, Jimmy!—A.E.N.

To Have The Best Cough Remedy, Mix It At Home

Quicker Relief. Big Saving! So Easy! No Cooking!

This famous recipe is used by millions of housewives, because there is no other way to obtain such a dependable, effective cough remedy. It's so simple to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its healing effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

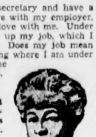
Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of cough remedy, far superior to anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick lasting relief. It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and clears the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

THROW AWAY JOB BEFORE YOUR LIFE

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am employed as a secretary and have a good position, but I realize that I am falling in love with my employer, who is a married man, and he in turn is falling in love with me. Under the circumstances would it be wise for me to give up my job, which I need very much, and try to find work elsewhere? Does my job mean more to me than peace? I feel I can't go on working where I am under the strain of existing conditions. Please advise me what to do. V. B.



Dorothy Dix

Answer:
My unhesitating advice to you is to leave at once. Flee while there is still time to save yourself. Do it before the attraction that this man has for you has become a spell that you cannot break.

Propinquity has the devilish power of drawing men and women together. It gives them common interests. It makes them depend upon each other, makes them necessary to each other. It throws a glamour over them and it fans a spark of fancy into a fire of passion. Men and women fall in love with each other for no other reason than that they are thrown constantly in each other's society.

So your only safety is in getting away from this man you are falling in love with. Get away from the thrill of his touch. Break the bonds of association. Get away where you will not be necessary to him or he to you. Go where you will have new faces about you, new interests. That is the quickest and surest way of forgetting him. The only way. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX.—I am the most unhappy girl in the world because the boy that I am in love with doesn't care beans about me. What can I do about it? ANNE.

Answer:
Absolutely nothing. Love is not an emotion that can be compelled. It comes and goes as it will and no one knows why. It is a matter of taste, of the imagination, of some subtle appeal, and, if you do not have it for a boy, you simply lack it, and that is all there is to it.

Your best plan is to quit thinking about him and turn your affections upon some more responsive youth. DOROTHY DIX.

Constance Has Natural Beauty

By GLADYS GLAD
"America's Most Famous Beauty"

The charming Constance Cummings who was recently in England making British pictures, but has now returned to give America a break, is one girl whose beauty really is natural. No artificial eyelashes, artificial nails or heavy make-up for her! And she's never even used a curling iron on her hair. Constance has naturally rather straight hair. But when she desires ringlets, she uses a safer method of procuring them than the curling iron way.

If you desire ringlet ends, don't do what many ill-advised or hasty damsels do. Don't grab the old curling iron and bake your hair ends into ringlets. Because the probability is that kinkiness, rather than ringlet ends, will result. And you may end with burnt or split ends into the bargain.

To burn those hair ends up into ringlets, I know of nothing better than the average amateur can use than the old-fashioned kid curlers that were so commonly employed in granny's heyday. These kid curlers come in varying sizes, and can be purchased in most department stores.

To use these curlers properly, first brush your hair vigorously with a flexible-bristled brush. Then separate the hair ends into rather small strands, and moisten each of them with a bit of water or waving fluid. Next, take one strand at a time and place a kid or aluminum curler at the extreme end of it. Be sure you get it right at the end, else kinkiness may result. Then carefully twist the curler around so that the hair winds smoothly about it. When the desired length of hair has been curled, fasten the curler, so that it will remain securely in place. Repeat this process with the remaining strands, making as many curls as you desire.

These curlers should be permitted to remain in the hair for two or three hours, at least, although this varies with the texture and condition of the hair. The hair must be allowed to dry thoroughly, in any case. And when the curlers are then removed, the strands should be combed around the index finger, so that the ringlet formation is retained.

Good Taste

By Francine Markel

In this, the slang era, some of us would find conversation very difficult without such means of self-expression. Do not allow yourself to develop this habit. Choose your own words. Do not use the "canned" expressions of some one else.

It is well to remember that the persistent user of slang gives the impression that he has a limited vocabulary, as well as an unoriginal mind. The creators of some such expressions are clever and original, but not so their followers who obediently cannot think for themselves. Do not put yourself in this class.

Minute Make-Ups

By V. V.

Remember, if you are going to have your picture taken, that you must use the same technique of make-up as though you were taking a screen test in Hollywood. No rouge. Slight, but well-blended eye shadow. Careful lipstick. No earrings or hats to date you. Artificial eyelashes if you wish.

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL COCHRAN Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

"Aw, let the cute beasts skate a while," said little Betty, with a smile. "Then, maybe they will let us try our luck out on the ice."

"Just notice, now, how nice they're dressed. I'll bet they look their very best. In fact, I've never seen two animals look quite so nice."

Ol' Marly Muskrat wore a hat that looked real funny. He wes fat, and it perched high atop his head. His coat looked much too big.

He chirped, "Hey, let's watch me skate. I now will make a figure eight." As soon as he completed that, he danced a little jig.

At last both beasts grew all tired out, and then the Tinies heard them shout. "Let Peter Penguin skate a bit. He really should be good."

The Tinies thought this plan was great, said Goldy, "I can hardly wait." And then she asked the funny-looking penguin if he would.

He held his feet up, one by one, while skates were put on. My, what fun the whole bunch had when Peter started out to do a glide.

He flapped his wings like everything and made his pudgy body swing. All of the Tinies laughed so heartily they almost cried.

The weasel had a real long coat, and fur piece that went 'round his throat. He also wore a sweater that had stripes of black and white.

"Twas fun to watch him skim around. His long skates didn't make a sound, except when he jumped up and then came down with all his might.

"Be careful! You will break right through, and that will be the end of you," cried Goldy. "Don't you worry," snapped the weasel with a grin.

"For years and years I've skated here, and I know there is naught to fear. I've never been unfortunate enough to topple in."

DAILY TRUE STORY

THE BEST LI'L WIFE!

By Lewis Allen Browne

"Yes, my dear," he said, staring at his Scotch and soda, "I've got the best li'l wife in the world."

The girl was one of the hostesses at the Sledge & Hammer, a semi-exclusive sort of night club with a widespread if not too savory reputation. She was known as "Pearl."

"Sure you have—all you men have the nicest li'l wives in the world—that's why you leave 'em home and come here to see us."

The man stopped staring at his drink and transferred his somewhat startled gaze on her.

Pearl was smiling at him. It was her stock smile. She had smiled like that at thousands of men. They all took it for granted that it was her very special smile reserved solely to let them know that she regarded all others as the bunk and their own particular self as the only worth-while chap.

"I've got the best li'l wife in the world," he mumbled.

But this time the man was a bit too sophisticated to quite believe that.

"Smart-cracking little dame, what?" he asked.

"No, not at all—just handing you a cluster of facts Mr. Smith."

"Mr. Smith, eh? How'd you guess that was my name?

"I'll bet you all I got with me, about fifty, that it isn't your name!"

"It's a go. It happens to be my name. Come across, Pearl."

The man, when the hostess had been brought to him, had been told that she was "Miss Pearl."

"Hand over your papers, your credentials, what letters you have with you, and I'll prove that your name is Smith, I'll pay up," said Pearl.

"Sure."

He reached into his inside coat pocket, hesitated, withdrew his hand and grinned at her.

"O. K., sister. You win, but how did you know I claimed to be a Mr. Smith?"

"Ninety-nine out of a hundred do. You lads haven't enough originality to say your name is Cheddington or Montgomery or even Jones or Brown or Robinson—you birds always say your name is Smith."

"O. K. Pearl — what's the diff?"

"Not a thing."

She reached down deftly. The man leaned sideways to get a glimpse around the end of the table. Pearl was extracting something from the top of her opera-length hose. The man got quite a glimpse. It was money that Pearl extracted. She counted it out in front of him.

She finished counting.

"See it?" she asked. He nodded. "Fifty-five. I told you I had about fifty with me. O. K. Mr. Smith, come across."

"Come across? I suppose you're trying to tell me that it was a real bet?"

She eyed him coldly for a moment.

"I suppose you're telling me that you are a tin-horn welsher, eh?" was her cold reply. Pearl was only kidding," he said, hastily and handed over another fifty-five.

He got another glimpse as she restored the then one hundred and ten to her opera-length hose.

"The limit, eh, Pearl?"

"Well," he said, "I was right, you're a wise-cracking little dame. Thanks for the tip. Next time I'll say my name is Hemingway Winterbotham."

"Swell idea, Mr. Smith."

"And that other wise crack of yours—that all the guys who come in here tell you they have the best li'l wife in the world—perhaps they do, only this time you're fooled. I mean it, no kidding!"

"Of course you do—all of you do. You all have the nicest little wives in the world."

"That's right, Pearl, so far as I am concerned. That's one reason I have to blow out to a joint—"

"This is no joint! This is a re-spected-and-busi-ness! The hostesses are respectable girls—"

"No offence, Pearl. We call every place a joint. What I'm getting at is a man has to have a little change. He's got to get out a bit, he can't sit at home all prim and pious and listen to saintly platitudes and domestic gossip—such constant trivia gives you a pain, if you get me."

The waiter brought the drinks, a split of ginger ale in a champagne bottle for Pearl and a highball for the man.

Champagne bubbles always tickle my nose," Pearl said, gravely.

"Scotch would be better for you, Pearl." He took a drink.

"Yes, he said, I've got the best li'l wife in the world."

"How does she feel about it, having you chase around like this?"

The man dropped one eyelid.

"Business, conference here, late work in the office, phone call to Washington to help out on a new scale—you know—there are a million excuses."

"Sure I know. Then you blow home after a few nights away all fagged out and your wife is all sympathy and coddles you and makes a big fuss over you because you are slaving so hard for her sake."

"I think we ought to fix up a nice little date, Pearl." He took a business card from his pocket. "Put it back and forget the date, Mr. 'Smith.'"

He argued a little.

"Even if I have got the best li'l wife in the world, Pearl, can't you see—"

"I've got a husband, what do you think of that?"

"You have, Pearl? I'll bet he's sore to have you doing this hostess stuff."

He walked out on me, the hand-some crook. Know what? He said he was too good looking to work as long as there were sap rich women. He's in Cleveland now, living like a prince on coin some woman hands him. Her husband's away most of the time. I know all

Peas and Beans Are Best Cooked Slowly

By MARY E. DAGUE

Mrs. Roosevelt served Hopping John at the White House not long ago and immediately everybody in the country started buying black-eyed peas. I hope that a lot of people found out how good they are and will keep on serving them. For they save money, they add proteins to the diet and, above all, savorily seasoned, they are the best kind of eating.

Sister Mary

Of course, the dried pea, bean and lentil family have come down in the world a bit recently with the discovery by laboratory that they are incomplete protein foods and must be supplemented by egg, cheese and milk. All the same, they fill an important niche for phosphorus in good-sized quantities.

Long slow cooking is imperative to soften the tough fibre and make dried legumes palatable. When served to small children they should also be rubbed through a sieve.

You've probably often baked the navy bean, but did you ever serve the lima the same way? If not, try it for luncheon some cold January noon with beans of celery for a relish (there's a dish for you!) and prune and almond Bavarian cream to follow.

BAKED LIMA BEANS

Two cups dried lima beans, ½ teaspoon soda, 2 sweet green peppers, 4 thin slices bacon, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup canned tomatoes, 1 cup hot water, ½ teaspoon salt.

Pick over and wash beans. Cover with cold water and let stand over night. Drain from water, cover with fresh cold water and bring to the boiling point. Simmer five minutes and add soda. Let simmer one minute longer. Drain and rinse in cold water. Put a layer of beans in a baking dish, sprinkle with shredded pepper and two slices of bacon cut in tiny squares. Continue until all the beans are used. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and pour over hot water and tomatoes. Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) for four hours.

PRUNE AND ALMOND BAVARIAN CREAM

One-half pound prunes, 1 orange 1½ tablespoons granulated gelatine, ⅓ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons chopped almonds, 1 cup whipping cream.

Wash prunes thoroughly and cover with two cups cold water. Let stand over night. In the morning simmer in the same water until tender, adding the yellow rind of the orange pared very thin. Drain prunes from juice and cool. Soften gelatine in 4 tablespoons cooled juice. Add with sugar to one cup hot prune juice and stir over heat without boiling until gelatine is dissolved. Add one-half cup stoned and chopped prunes, juice of orange, almonds and salt. Stir over ice water until mixture begins to thicken. Then fold in cream whipped until firm. Decorate a mold with prunes, replacing the stones with blanched almonds and pour in gelatine mixture. Let stand on ice for several hours until chilled and firm. Unmold and serve with remaining prunes which have been stoned.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Chilled tomato juice with lemon juice, cereal, cream, hash, cornmeal muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Baked lima beans, hearts of celery, Boston brown bread, prune and almond Bavarian cream, milk, tea.

DINNER: Veal roast with stuffed onions, molded spinach, creamed Jerusalem artichokes, rice souffle, milk, coffee.

What's What

1. At a teacher's luncheon of 12 places to be given on Saturday, what is a simple but satisfactory menu? Should I use bread-and-butter plates and my gold-inlaid service plates (a gift from the alumnae)? 2. A group of 20 teachers

—six men and 14 women—are to be entertained on the following Saturday evening after a dinner held in the school hall. I am on the committee. What would be a good program of entertainment?

Answer—1. Use bread-and-butter plates and my gold-inlaid service plates as the luncheon is very informal. 2. Bring a group of 20 teachers together for a game of bridge. The twenty may be divided into smaller groups for cards and conversation. An impromptu musicale is a generally acceptable finale.

1. How should cocktails be served before the dinner? 2. When only one wine can be served, would you suggest port or sherry?

ANXIOUS READER.

Answer—1. Pass tiny caviar sandwiches as appetizers with the cocktails ten minutes before you announce dinner. 2. Sherry.

What New York Is Wearing

By Helen Williams

Here's a precious coat model patterned for today. It will have strong appeal to the smart woman who always shows decided preference for a coat of simple straight-line styling. It gives a tall slender unbroken line to the figure. A noticeable thing about coats this season is that the necklines are very soft and flattering. And the standing flaring collar does it beautifully in this model.

It is just as simple as A, B, C to make it, for the pattern has few major parts.

You'll be surprised at the small amount it will cost you. At the present counter prices no doubt find just the length of excellent quality woolen for a very nominal sum. It takes but 3½ yards of 54-inch material for this model for the 36-inch bust with 3 yards of 39-inch lining. The collar may be self-material, fur or fur fabric. It takes only ⅝ yard of 40-inch for cloth for the collar.

Style No. 3085 is designed for sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust.

Patterns will be delivered upon receipt of FIFTEEN cents (15c) in coins, carefully wrapped, or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

Our LATEST FASHION BOOK will be sent from receipt of FIFTEEN cents in coins. Address all mail orders to Pattern Department, Edmonton Bulletin.

about it. I even know that her husband is a big transportation man named Charles G. Henderson—so there you are, huh?"

"There you are," the man agreed. He got up and tossed a bill. "Settle for me, Pearl—I've had too much."

Well, my regards to the best li'l wife in the world, Mr. Smith" said Pearl.

She watched him depart. The waiter came along and picked up the card the man had dropped on the floor. Pearl paid the check and glanced at the card.

"Oh my God!" she gasped.

The name on the card was "Charles G. Henderson, General Transportation!"

CLOSES 65 YEARS OF STEADY GROWTH
During the past sixty-five years there have been in our national life periods of great prosperity and of economic stress, years of war and peace, of epidemics and unusually good health, crop failures and abundant harvests. Throughout these years the Mutual Life of Canada has steadily grown from a group of five hundred policyholders in 1870 to a group of over 141,000 at the close of 1934—during this year the number of policyholders increased by over 2,800. At the close of each year the insurance in force has exceeded that of the preceding year.
THERE IS A REASON
Since its inception every dollar of profit has been returned to policyholders as premium refunds, or is held in trust for their benefit, resulting in low net cost insurance. This record combined with a high quality of service has built up this large body of satisfied policyholders.
OWNED BY POLICYHOLDERS
In 65 years the Company has disbursed under Insurance Contracts over $183,000,000
(of which $89,000,000 represents dividends to living policyholders)
There are many evidences that the pendulum is swinging towards better times. We hope that all parts of Canada will share in this general improvement.
A Happy New Year To All

Your Children — By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Children are so natural and direct. They do not have the little concealments adults do, or at least not until they are driven to it.

What things cause these subterfuges bear looking into. Let us suppose that little Johnnie is the youngest of three children, counting his parents, that makes five.

O. R. Barton

Mother like most distracted people, finds a certain relief in fault-finding. She has no patience with the baby's behavior. He wants something. It is the carving knife. She slams it in the drawer and gives him a box on the ears.

He cries. "Shut up," she orders, and he wanders into another room and yells. He keeps it up until she spanks him.

Half a dozen times a day this is repeated; not the carving knife episode, but everything from the gravy on the carpet to hammering on the piano.

HAND IS ONLY CONTACT

There seems to be no point of contact between them at all but her hand, and that caresses him only when she is moved by sudden motherly waves when her own nerves are at peace.

Dad is still less predictable. He comes home at night in one or the other of his many moods. Sometimes he is jolly. Again he is silent and critical. Again he delights in bringing Johnny up to the point of expectancy only to disappoint him. Common among men and very heartless. Occasionally he rouses the little boy's faith. Which makes it all the worse because it makes the next sudden relapse all the harder to bear.

Here too Johnny begins to feel the conflict of his parents' ideals and into himself and the contacts with his father cease as far as the boy is concerned. He doesn't try to talk to him. He doesn't climb up on his knee. He doesn't run to meet him. From then on it is merely a matter of order and obedience.

Salt is six. She is a selfish little devil. And besides she has the usual six-year-old impatience with the small brother. Her shrill little voice gets exercise by continually whining, "Mother, make Johnny stop." "Mother, tell him to do that." No companion, ship here. More withdrawal into himself.

Lionel, aged ten, is a born tease. He gets his manliness up by making fun of his brother. He chases him at times and rough-houses him in various ways. Johnny is downright afraid of Lionel.

He learns to conceal his real self, to fib, to pretend and find comfort in baby escapes. And of course he finds relief in being very naughty indeed.

CONDITION IS COMMON

I would not say that this is an average home or family, but were the walls to be rolled back we might find it to be a more common composite of affairs than is generally thought possible. While it is true that "charity" is often the pet and more indulged than the other children, it is also true that he has more adjustments to make toward family temperament than the rest and one he is too young to make. Johnny may be an only child, or he may come from a larger family, but it goes to show why children lose their directness. One of the chief causes is loneliness of soul. Slowly his state of affairs is being corrected. But there is still vast room for improvement.

Hollywood Gossip

INTIMATE GLIMPSES AND INSIDE STUFF ON THE MOVIE COLONY

By DAN THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 2. — One type of Hollywood story which never becomes old is the answer to, "How did they do it?"

In a nation filled with movie-struck boys and girls, this seems to be a story which they never tire hearing. And why not? Each story might possibly tip off a newcomer as to how he or she might get a break before the cameras.

Probably one of the most interesting features in the tales of how some of our stars got started lies in the various methods used for financing themselves. During the last few days I've picked up a couple of very good incidents.

Bill Powell, who switched from law to acting, as a result of appearing in a high school production, went to work for a telephone company in St. Louis to raise enough money to enter a dramatic school. But he couldn't save fast enough out of his $50-a-month salary.

So he wrote a 23-page letter to a wealthy aunt in Pennsylvania, asking her for a loan of $1,400 to take him through two terms of the school. She sent him $700 and he headed for New York immediately.

Incidentally, it took him 13 years to repay the loan.

Myrna Loy was so possessed with the desire to become an actress that she opened a dancing school at the age of 16, to earn enough money to carry her through the early days.

Her studio was just across the street from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio and she spent all her spare time altting in the studio casting office, hoping for the break which finally came after many weary weeks of waiting.

AUTO COMPETITORS

I wonder what will be next. About a week ago Margaret Lindsay drove into the Warner studio in a new white car. Joe E. Brown spotted the eye-flasher and grunted. Four days later he appeared in a new car done in a flashy baby blue. But they still ca, t hold a candle to that yellow and green car Gary Cooper used to have.

Museums Buy Oriental Art

LONDON, Jan. 2—The British museum and the Victoria and Albert Museum have arranged to purchase jointly for £100,000 the world-famous collection of Chinese and other far eastern art made during the last 30 years by George Eumorfopoulos, wealthy Liverpool businessman.

Announcement the museums would buy the collection was made last night and it was revealed that, as in the case of the purchase of the Codex Sinaiticus a year ago, the public would be invited to contribute money.

The collection includes porcelains, pottery, painting, jewelry, ornaments and bronzes, some of them dating from almost 1,000 B.C.

Sir George Hill, principal librarian of the British museum, said the value of the collection is far greater than the purchase price.

The Debunker

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph.D.

The eyesight is deluded in this case. Birds spend hte night on their heads, tucked under their wings, but in most cases they turn their heads around and place them upon the soft feathers of the back, which frequently hide the heads of the birds completely from view.

GOTHAM HAS NOISY REVEL AT YEAR END

NEW YORK, Jan. 2. — Gotham mopped up yesterday after the greatest New Year's Eve celebration in the city's history—but the aftermath was recorded on police court blotters, in hospitals and the morgue.

Three deaths—two in automobile crashes and one from injuries suffered in a fall—were attributed indirectly to the revelry, while 36 celebrators faced magistrates' courts in Manhan on intoxication charges. Most of them received suspended sehtences.

Ambulances responded to 320 calls, exclusive of automobile crashes, during the first half of 1935's day to treat accident victims.

There were 22 auto accidents in Manhattan and the Bronx in the same period, injuring 78 persons. Two men were held on charges of driving while intoxicated.

Times Square's biggest throng jostled and jolted in 1935 with a gay, strident New Year's demonstration, the greatest in New York's history.

AMUSEMENTS

RIALTO

Crucified for a headline. . . . !

This is the dramatic theme of Columbia's "White Lies", which is showing today and Thursday at the Rialto theatre with Walter Connolly, Fay Wray and Victor Jory in the leading featured roles, under the direction of Leo Bulgakov, noted former New York and Moscow Art theatre director.

Graphically relating a cross-section in the life of a newspaper publisher whose life is fanatically devoted to the sensational in the daily news grist, the story, by Harold Shumate, is crammed full of thrills and surprises.

Through his relentless quest for glaring sensation, the publisher, "Front Page" Mitchell, drives a repentant embezzler to murder and imperils the life of his own daughter on the altar of his mad ambition.

Champion rodeo riders and famous outlaw bucking horses will be seen in Tim McCoy's new cast for his film, "The Westerner," which is also on the double feature bill.

In the production McCoy is cast as a cowhand whose specialty is riding bucking broncbos. Sequences on a ranch and at a rodeo show McCoy as well as the present-day rodeo champions attempting to ride some of the most noted bucking horses of the west.

EMPRESS

Will Rogers "discovers" still another quarter of the country in the new Fox film, "Judge Priest," which opened at the Empress theatre Monday, and in so doing gives to the screen one of his greatest performances.

A sleepy Kentucky town of the early nineties supplies the background for the newest Rogers vehicle, fashioned from the famous Irvin S. Cobb stories of the small-town judge and his Civil War cronies. The film gives Rogers probably the finest opportunity of his screen career.

Richer in flavor even than the shrewd Yankee horse trader of "David Harum," the Iowa farmer of "State Fair" or the wise and patient westerner of "They Had to See Paris," the drawling but quick-witted southern jurist is a memorable addition to the Rogers gallery of "Representative Americans."

The star's portrayal of Judge Priest has the mark of authenticity upon it. It is a notable folk portrait, just as his other characterizations have been; the unique blending of a splendid talent with a rich and splendid role. But more than that, it stands alone for its sheer dramatic power. Seldom has Rogers had such opportunities as his present role affords to call both tears and laughter from his audience.

EDMONTON WELCOMES 1935 WITH NOISY MERRIMENT

Joyous Bedlam As Midnight Ushers Birth Of New Year

City Ablaze With Bright Entertainment — Homes Cheery With Social Functions.

In a bedlam of noise Edmonton joined with the rest of the world in welcoming the New Year 1935. Noise-making contraptions and contrivances of all kinds were appropriated to fittingly speed on its way the departing year 1934 and to welcome the bounding baby 1935. There were cheers galore; bells rang joyously; sirens screeched, locomotive whistles sent their penetrating salvos of sound to far corners of the city; automobile horns by the hundred released a deafening succession of hoots, while thousands of humans joined in singing, shouting and cheering. And mingled with all the noise there was the odd razzberry and Bronx cheer for the departing year from those who had not fared any too well at its hands.

ACTION APLENTY

The central part of the city was like one vast entertainment stage, with entertainment of all kinds and descriptions vieing with one another for the favor of the celebrants.

Dances, frolics and special showings at the theatres all combined to make the evening one to be long remembered.

There were watchnight and other services at some churches.

Among the more popular of the rendezvous for the dancers were the Macdonald hotel, Shasta Peacock room, Tivoli, King Edward Rose room, Club Academy and the Prince of Wales Armory where the garrison officers and sergeants messes held dances.

At all of these, capacity attendances were registered and in some cases many were turned away.

The theatres also fared well, those staging midnight frolics and special showings also reporting capacity business. The regular evening shows also did well.

MANY FROLICS

The New Empire, following its 12-act vaudeville show, put on a midnight frolic with a capacity house present, the gaiety lasting until well on into the morning.

At the Capitol there was a midnight frolic with special prizes given away and the occasion featured by the first showing here of the movietone picturization of Franz Lehar's world success, the operetta "The Merry Widow."

The Rialto, Strand and Empress theatres were others to present frolics and all reported splendid attendance.

Many private dances and other entertainments were held.

On Tuesday the celebrations were continued.

Chief among these was the reception held at government house with His Honor Lieut.-Gov. W. L. Walls receiving. Worship Mayor J. A. Clarke and Mrs. Clarke and Rt. Rev. Bishop A. E. Burgett were among the others present.

In the afternoon roads also were directed toward the arena where the Edmonton Canadiens hockey locked horns in a North-Western Hockey League game with the Pekinese coming out on top by the score of 6-0.

The ping-pong tournament at the Y.M.C.A. drew a large gallery with some high-class games carded.

The various curling clubs were busy and several rinks reported skating although the falling snow did not add to the attractiveness of the situation.

But all in all it was a grand celebration of the New Year which assuredly got away to an auspicious start.

C. HURST IS NAMED HEAD BOYS' PARLEY

Fifteenth Annual Boys' Parliament Prorogued at Saturday Session

Election o Charlie Hurst of Calgary to the premiership of the 1935 Tuxis Boys' Parliament, featured the closing session of the fifteenth annual Boys' Parliament, Saturday.

The premier-elect is a sophomore at Alberta Varsity, studying engineering. His duties will not commence until next December.

The congress was prorogued Saturday night as it sat in the council chamber of the Parliament Buildings, with Howard Stutchbury, Alberta trade commissioner, officiating as Lieutenant-Governor.

Saturday's session also resulted in the election of Matt Davis as leader of the opposition of the next parliament, and of Fred Fiske as deputy premier. Both youths are residents in Edmonton. Roger Flumerfelt of Calgary was elected "alternate" to fill any vacancy caused by the inability of any of the leaders mentioned to be present at the 1935 session. Gordon Finlay of Carmangay was re-elected speaker.

WILL CELEBRATE

To celebrate the "coming of age" of Tuxis it was decided to recommend to the Alberta Boys' Work Board that a "Tuxis Sunday" be held throughout the province on March 5, 1935.

It was decided to forward a letter to Hon. H. H. Stevens, commending him for his work in connection with the mass buying probe. The youthful parliament also ordered the drawing up of a citizenship study program to be made available to Tuxis groups and to be based on the program of the Christian Commonwealth Youth Movement of Canada.

Rev. Geo. D. Young of Rimbey, Rev. Laurence Seiber of Vilna, Rev. T. B. McDormand of Edmonton and Rev. R. W. Hibbert of Calgary were among those who directed leadership training courses.

GUESTS OF C.G.I.T.

On Saturday afternoon the young legislators were guests of the Edmonton council of the Canadian Girls in Training at a party held in McDougall church. Miss May Sutcliffe acted as hostess, and Miss Connie Smith spoke on the need of co-operation between the C.G.I.T. and Tuxis movements.

Speaking on "Barriers to World Peace", E. A. Corbett told parliament on Saturday morning that "the fact United States is not a member of the League of Nations is a barrier to world peace, for if Great Britain and United States presented a united front for peace they might preserve the peace of the world." He praised the League.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Do you approve of the Dominion government's policy of making registration of firearms compulsory?

By an amendment to the Criminal Code passed at the last session of parliament, such registration is compulsory as from Jan. 1. Some discussion on the advisability of such action has taken place and here are some opinions on the matter:

GUS BANNERMAN, salesman:— "Sure, I think it is an excellent idea, although for awhile it will give the police plenty to do in registering. It will serve a good purpose in keeping a close check on those who have firearms and will probably lead to less crime."

CHARLES McCLURE, insurance agent:— "The idea has my full and complete approval. In England all pistols and rifles are registered and Scotland Yard has a complete list, enabling investigators to obtain clues in gunning and their actions. I am sure the registration will similarly aid authorities here."

RONALD BUTLER, Businessman:— "The idea strikes me as good. The argument is all in favor of the action and there can be no dissenting view in my opinion."

GEORGE HILL, clothing merchant: —"The work of the police should be greatly facilitated as a result of this. A check on firearms will facilitate police work and will tend toward reducing the number on hand in use. It is a most excellent idea."

MARRIAGES, BIRTHS UP LAST YEAR

Vital statistics for Edmonton during the year 1934 show an increase in both births and marriages over 1933, according to figures released on Wednesday.

In 1933 there were 2,128 births; 1,191 marriages and 876 deaths.

Called for the purpose of considering the revised report of the civic nominations committee, a special meeting of council will be held at 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Recommended new appointments to the Edmonton police board will be dealt with by councillors at the special parley. Seven new members have been proposed for the board this year.

Stolen while it was waiting for passengers at 11214 92 street at 1.30 a.m. New Year's Day, a taxi was recovered by police seven hours later when they found it abandoned near the corner of 82 street and 114 avenue. At the time the cab was stolen, the driver was inside the house waiting for the fares.

Brother of J. E. Bagley of this city, William Sidney Bagley, 54, of Calgary, who died on Monday, will be buried here on Wednesday. In addition to J. E. Bagley, surviving members of the family are W. H. Bagley, Vancouver and a sister, Mrs. L. L. Gale, Quebec.

CITY JAIL AN EMPTY PLACE OVER HOLIDAY

It's rare when a night passes in any part of the year with no arrests made by police, but when the blotter at headquarters remains as pure as the driven snow on New Year Eve and stays that way New Year Day as well as just something that hasn't happened here in the memory of the oldest timer on the police department.

Up to 6.00 p.m. Tuesday, 18 hours after the midnight bells killed 1934, no one had been arrested for being drunk, had peeked into the cell block.

"It just kind of squares things up for last year," remarked Ed. Kenny, who was doing desk sergeant duty New Year Eve and Day for the first time. "Two years ago at this time, the cells were crowded and the bells full. A change is mighty nice."

Only two men, hold-overs from the Monday morning police court session occupied the cells. They were arrested last Saturday night and are still awaiting trial. They spent a dull holiday, not even a third man coming in to make three banded bridge possible.

Huge Cougar Slain By Whitford Brothers In District Near Spedden

Six-foot Animal Shot By Trappers With .22 Calibre Rifles

"Quick, Jeeves, the old elephant gun—there's a cougar lurking in the garden!"

Alberta's first cougar has bitten the dust, and its hide is now in possession of Isaac Stern, Spedden storekeeper, who is a business visitor in the city and is staying at the Royal George hotel. The big animal was shot down by Napoleon Whitford and Gordon Whitford, half-breed trappers of the Spedden district.

Strange rumors have trickled down from that country of cougars ravishing the stock and frightening the settlers, but they were always laughed off and put down to the famous Beaver river blend of moonshine. Cougars are strictly a British Columbia product, and while there have been reports of them killing deer on the eastern slopes of the Rockies of late, no definite evidence on this point was forthcoming.

SHOT WITH .22 RIFLES

According to the story of the encounter given Stern by the Whitford brothers, the cougar was shot with .22 rifles.

The Whitfords were out hunting squirrels, and had allowed their dog pad-marks of the cougar for some distance in the snow. They thought it was a lynx. Soon they saw the quarry lurking behind some brush. Still believing it was a lynx, the two Whitfords crept closer, but soon knew it wasn't a lynx. There was the most unearthly yowl as the two little bullets took effect, and the huge mountain lion bounded about 18 feet in the air.

As it hit the ground again, still yowling, with fangs bared and tail twitching, the two brothers standing shoulder to shoulder, poured shot after shot into the animal's head. The cougar just couldn't take it and fell dead.

Not far away, the brothers found a dead steer, killed by the cougar. The animal evidently had the cougar had leaped on the steer from a tree.

It is said that there are two other cougars in the district, and many losses have been reported by stockmen. One rancher lost 45 lambs in the last few months, and had always thought that coyotes were responsible.

The cougar hide is more than six feet long. It is a light fawn in color, with a long tail with a black tuft on the end of it. The claws are as long as those of a grizzly bear.

Though it is now past Christmas, Spedden district shepherds have now taken to watching their flocks by night, guarding against the mountain lions, which are 400 miles further east than they have ever been reported before.

Club Annual Meeting is Featured by Year's Report

Installation of Joseph C. Cook as president of the Kiwanis Club for 1935 was made by Lieut.-Governor J. Glenwright at the regular weekly meeting held Monday noon in the Macdonald hotel.

Giving an outline of the year's work past President James Walker, who presided at the meeting, which was the last of the year, stated that excellent progress had been made during the year.

SOME AIMS REACHED

"We are able to finish the year feeling that some of our aims have been accomplished if not all," said Mr. Walker, who stated that the club now had a membership of 106 and was in a very healthy financial condition.

Following the address given by Mr. Walker, buttons were presented to both the past and future presidents.

Taking the opportunity to congratulate Mr. Walker and the members of the executive in the way they had carried on the work of the club during the past year, Mr. Cook expressed the hope that he would be able to maintain the same standard during the coming year.

MANY MAYORS WILL ATTEND CALGARY MEET

Mayor A. Davison, of Calgary, has been advised by the municipalities of Red Deer and Westminster that delegates from those points will attend the Calgary conference of western mayors to be held January 28. Interest reduction and relief costs are two of the major matters to be discussed at this parley.

Saskatoon said the proposed conference would be considered, while Kamloops, B.C., has tabled the question until after the civic elections.

Mayor Code and Commissioner A. T. Stephenson will represent Red Deer at the meeting.

The Saskatchewan section of the United Farmers of Canada is supporting the conference, and is urging the United Farmers of Alberta and the United Farmers of Manitoba to seek co-ordination from rural and urban municipalities along these lines.

Suggesting that bi-metallism be considered at the conference, the Silver Association of Canada, B.C. section, is lending its support.

To take a six months tour of the world Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Drinnan will leave Edmonton Thursday for New York to embark on the Canadian Pacific steamship Empress of Britain. Enroute to New York Mr. Drinnan will visit his son at Eryria, Ohio.

Liberal Chief Among List 23 New Alberta King's Counsellors

Nine Edmonton Barristers Now Entitled to Honor Hon. J. F. Lymburn, K.C. Announces Wednesday.

Marking the first occasion on which such a list has been issued since 1906, Hon. J. F. Lymburn K.C., attorney general, on Wednesday issued an Alberta "New Year's Honors List" of 23 barristers-at-law who are to be entitled to the honour of "king's counsel."

The list includes W. R. Howson, provincial Liberal leader, Hugh C. Farthing, Conservative member of the legislature for Calgary and F. C. Moyer, M.L.A. for Drumheller.

The complete list, in alphabetical order, is as follows, as issued by the attorney general:—

Henry Grattan Nolan, Calgary; Andrew Boyden Hogg, Lethbridge; Laurence Yeomans Cairns, Edmonton; Stanley Harwood McCuaig, Edmonton; John Alexander Allen, Edmonton; Brian LeRoy Cooke, Taber; Hugh Craig Farthing, Calgary; John Lorne Fawcett, Macleod; Adam Henry Goodall, Calgary.

William Robertson Howson, Edmonton; Neville Richard Lindsay, Edmonton; Moses Isaac Lieberman, Edmonton; Fred Clarke Moyer, Drumheller; William Dixon Craig, Edmonton; James Boyd McBride, Edmonton; John Cameron McDonald, Edmonton; Charles Alfred Russell, Wetaskiwin; Abner Gladstone Virtue, Lethbridge.

John Ralston Wait, Claresholm; Austin de Barnes Winter, Calgary; Joseph Isaac Sexsmith, Clarence Everett Smith, Calgary; Norman D. Dingle, Calgary.

NINE FROM EDMONTON

Of the total nine are from this city, six from Calgary and the rest from other provincial points.

The Order-in-Council carrying these appointments into effect has been signed by His Honor Lieut. Gov. W. L. Walsh that "the undermentioned persons be appointed, during pleasure to be provincial officers under the name of His Majesty's Counsel learned in the law for the province of Alberta."

Use of the authority of name King's Counsel has been used sparingly in Alberta.

Not since 1930 has a list been issued in this province and in the intervening four-year period, only one, W. L. Walsh, has been named. James J. Frawley has been to the attorney general's department.

The appointment of King's Counsel is left entirely to the attorney-general of the province, with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. The executive council attaches to the appointment, although in England it entitles the bearer to extra court fees.

W. R. HOWSON, K.C.,

provincial Liberal leader, whose services as a barrister, "learned in the law" have been recognized in his appointment as a King's Counsel.

1935 MAY SEE CANCELLATION CITY GAS PACT

Mayor Urges Agreement be Terminated—Orders Immediate Probe

Mayor Joseph Clarke's estimate that it will take $3,000,000 to buy Northwestern Utilities' gas franchise here and the statement by H. R. Milner, K.C., president of the firm, that it would cost "in the neighborhood of $7,000,000 to put this city in the gas business" form one of the major topics of discussion in civic circles today.

The mayor is asking council to officially notify the gas company that the agreement will be terminated at its expiration in October, 1935. A clause in the agreement gives the city the right to take over the gas system upon payment of a sum to be set by arbitration or agreement.

Meanwhile, Mayor Clarke has ordered an investigation into the company's financial standing and its distribution system. Those instructed to conduct this probe are Comptroller John Hodgson, Henderson and Kinnaird, the city's comptroller, City Engineer A. W. Haddow, and Supt. R. J. Gibb, of the waterworks department.

Customs and excise collections for December 1934, show an increase of $91,338.73 over the corresponding month, 1933 and an increase of $35,620.13 over November, 1934. It is estimated that for the nine months of the fiscal year to December 31 that an increase of over $20,000 has been recorded compared with the same period in 1933.

City Reports More Revenue From Licenses

Licenses issued by the city licenses department during 1934 showed a slight increase over the total for the preceeding year, figures being $63,395 and $63,023, respectively, Supt. Thos. McCallum reported Wednesday.

During the year 370 summonses were issued to those failing to take out the necessary licenses. In 1933 summonses issued numbered 417.

Licenses issued during the years follow, those for 1934 and 1933 being given in that order; general licenses, 2,836, 3,235; bicycle licenses, 3,697, 3,750; dog tags, 3,189, 3,372.

CANADIAN POSITION, PROSPECTS SHOWN AT 1934 CLOSE

FINE PROGRESS MADE OUT OF DEPRESSION

Recovery Largely Due to Commercial Pacts With United Kingdom

By HON. R. B. HANSON, K.C., M.P.
Minister of Trade and Commerce

Canada, all things considered, has made remarkable progress during 1934. Recovery from the great depression has been steadily going on and the Dominion enters upon the new year with brighter prospects than in any other year since the depression commenced. The recovery that has taken place has been very largely due to the influence of the Ottawa agreements, providing us with preferential markets in the greatest importing nation in the world as well as in the other Dominions. The United Kingdom itself has experienced a substantial measure of prosperity and its official index number of industrial production stands in the third quarter of 1934 at 105.3 per cent of the 1924 level as compared with 96.8 per cent in the corresponding period of 1933.

British imports in the first ten months of 1934 amounted to £605,393,000 as compared with £549,218,000 in the same period of 1933 and British exports of domestic products to £325,756,000 as compared with £302,527,000. Again, these imports are coming more and more largely from the countries of the British Empire and the exports are going more and more largely to the Dominions and the colonies. Thus the sentimental bonds that unite the Empire are being more and more reinforced by the economic bonds of intra-Empire trade.

As for Canadian trade, the total exports of Canadian merchandise in the latest twelve-month period ended October, 1934, were $638,220,000 as compared with $508,999,000 in its predecessor, an increase of $129,230,000 or about 25½ per cent. Exports of the products of the farm, the fisheries, the forests and the mines all showed increases.

BULLION EXPORTS

Again, exports of coin and bullion not included with merchandise exports also showed a remarkable advance, due in the main to the higher prices secured for our newly mined gold. They were $58,981,000 in the twelve months ended October, 1934, as compared with $38,460,000 in the same period of 1933.

When merchandise exports and bullion exports, which are practically all the new product of our gold mines, are taken together, the grand total exports of Canada in this latest twelve-month period had a value of $730,928,000 as compared with $580,512,000 in the preceding twelve-month period, an increase of over $150,000,000.

Imports, too, have increased in this latest twelve-month period ended October, reaching $733,857,000 as compared with $588,865,000 in the preceding period, an increase of $144,692,000 or more than 29 per cent, with the incidental result of increasing our gross customs revenue by nearly $13,000,000. Particularly notable among the imports was an increase of 50 per cent in the imports of iron and its products, indicative of rising industrial activity.

The growth of our external trade is, of course, based upon the expansion of our productive activities. Accordingly a brief reference may now be made to the different lines of production and general business in 1934.

Agriculture — The preliminary estimate of the value of Canadian field crops is placed at the relatively high figure of $536,498,000 being nearly $113,000,000 or 27 per cent above the 1933 valuation and considerably the highest figure in the last four years. Farmers in nearly all the provinces of Canada are sharing in these increased values. The prevailing live stock prices have been slightly above those for 1933, with the United Kingdom an important outlet for bacon and live cattle in particular. Dairying has also been a relatively profitable farm operation during most of 1934; the production of cheese has declined, but there have been increases in creamery butter and other dairy factory products. Prices of both eggs and dressed poultry have been above the 1933 levels. Generally speaking, the prices received by farmers for their products have risen more than those of the commodities which they buy, while debt adjustments and lower rates of interest have alleviated the farmers' position in 1934 and are expected to continue in 1935.

Forestry—The forestry industries of Canada have achieved remarkable progress in the latest year, especially in recent months. Exports of planks and boards were 41 per cent higher in the first ten months of 1934 than in the same period of 1933. Similarly, newsprint production has risen from 1,834,000 tons in the first eleven months of 1933, to 2,358,000 tons in the same period of 1934, an increase of 28 per cent.

The Proof of Canada's Progress
SOME FACTS AND FIGURES

1 Though ranking but twenty-eighth in point of population, Canada has consolidated her position as fifth among the great exporting nations of the world. For the first eleven months of 1934—as compared with the corresponding period of 1933—the total merchandise trade of Canada increased in value by $221,000,000, or 26 per cent.

2 During the same period, the merchandise exports of Canada increased by $111,000,000, as compared with 1933, and imports by $109,000,000, whilst the balance of trade in 1934 (eleven months) was favourable to the extent of $124,000,000, a gain of $1,000,000 over 1933. This is exclusive of a net balance of $83,000,000 of exports of bullion, nearly all newly-mined Canadian gold.

3 In the first ten months of 1934, Canadian exports to foreign countries increased by $29,000,000, over the similar period of 1933, and Canadian exports to Empire countries increased by $18,000,000.

4 Manufacturing output in 1934 shows a big gain both in volume and value over 1933. The index of industrial production showed a gain of 19 per cent for the five-month period ending October 31, 1934 over the corresponding months of 1933. Output of pig iron and steel more than doubled; newsprint output registered a gain of 29 per cent; construction increased by nearly 40 per cent; output of cars and trucks by 86 per cent; tires by 34 per cent; consumption of electrical power reached a new high point in the history of the industry; and gains were recorded in almost every important branch of productive activity.

5 The volume of mineral production reached a new high peak in 1934, with a gain over 1933 of nearly 20 per cent. In 1932, Canada's mineral output was valued at $191,000,000; in 1933 at $221,000,000; while in 1934 it will exceed $260,000,000. Coal produced in Canada during 1934 shows an increase of nearly 20 per cent over 1933.

6 Lumber exports in 1934 show tremendous increases, a gain of 90 per cent being registered over 1933. Under the Empire trade agreements, exports to British countries have increased from 342,000,000 feet in 1932 to 653,000,000 feet in 1933, and to possibly 1,000,000,000 feet in 1934. (The exports for the first ten month of the year show a total of 892,000,000 feet). Exports to foreign countries, other than the United States, have also increased. The pulp and paper industry has resumed, in 1934, production on almost a normal scale, which, in itself, has provided employment for thousands of additional men in the woods and in the mills. The production of newsprint during the first ten months of the year exceeded that of any previous year, excepting 1929. The total value of pulp and paper exports during 1934 is expected to show an increase of $14,000,000 over 1933.

7 The estimated value of the field crops of Canada for 1934 is the highest since 1930, and exceeds the 1933 value by $113,000,000. The high quality of the Dominion field crops and livestock has again been notably demonstrated at the recent Chicago International Exhibition, when Canadian exhibitors won 17 championships and 32 first prizes. The grand championship for Hard Red Spring Wheat—the major award for wheat entries—was again won by the Dominion.

8 During the year 1934, Canada has not experienced a single major industrial disturbance—an impressive indication of the national stability of the Dominion's industrial life. Employment, one of the most vital indices of a country's economic position, showed a gain of 15.9 per cent during 1934. Compared with a year ago, 97,194 employees have been added to the pay-rolls of the firms reporting, whose numbers have increased by some 500.

9 As a basic indication of industrial and agricultural activity, freight movement in 1934 registered a considerably higher level than in 1933. Car loadings showed a gain, for the first ten months of 1934, of 16 per cent as compared with a similar period of 1933, nine of the eleven commodity groups showing increases.

10 Total ordinary revenue for the Dominion in the first eight months of 1934 (fiscal year) amounted to $245,062,540 as against a total of $216,902,271 for the corresponding period of 1933—an increase of $28,160,269. For this same period, there is a surplus of ordinary revenue over ordinary expenditure of $1,604,449.

11 Gross postage collections in the first ten months of 1934, amounted to $1,215,560 more than in the corresponding period of 1933; this is indicative of increasing business.

AS THE YEAR 1934 passes into history, Canada can look back upon a period of unimpaired progress so definitely sustained that it has brought us to the pathway that leads to a sound, sensible, and stable prosperity. The advance that we, as a country, have made during the past year has demonstrated anew the inherent strength and stability of the Dominion. We have seen the faith to which we held so firmly in the darker days abundantly fulfilled—the confidence to which we clung in gloomier years triumphantly vindicated. With clearer skies above us, and with firmer ground beneath our feet, we have advanced with unimpeded progress along the road of national reconstruction and economic recuperation. It is at once a tribute and a testimony to the courage of the Canadian people that, to-day, Canada marches in the vanguard of the nations in their pilgrimage toward prosperity.

Throughout the past year, the pulse of our business life has grown stronger day by day. Canadian industry, through all its multitudinous channels, has felt the urge of a resurgent activity. The process of production has been steadily accelerated to meet an intensified demand for Canadian commodities, and, throughout the Dominion, our manufacturing plants have experienced a sustained activity that often challenged their capacity. Our international trade, so vital to the economic welfare of the nation, has seen an almost spectacular increase in volume and in value, and the trade agreements which have been effected between Canada and other parts of the Empire, as well as with twenty-five other nations throughout the world, have opened up new avenues of distribution, with ever-widening potentialities of business, for the products of Canadian farms, forests, and fisheries, mines and manufactories. And it is a significant fact—as well as a symbol of our progress—that employment in Canada has reached, to-day, a higher level than that of any month since the upward trend began.

Encouraged by the progress we have made, cheered by the brighter days we now encounter, sustained by the courage and the confidence which upheld us through the darker years, we can face, unafraid, the problems of the future. As a united people—yet each in his own place and endeavor—let us advance together to further heights of national achievement. Thus shall the great destiny of Canada be fulfilled, and all her people find happiness in the days to be.

Hon. R. B. HANSON, K.C., M.P.,
Minister

DEPARTMENT OF TRADE AND COMMERCE
OTTAWA · CANADA

January 1st, 1935

The Department of Trade and Commerce exists to serve you
USE THE SERVICES IT PROVIDES

The Department now maintains thirty-four Trade Commissioners in strategic centres throughout the world—fourteen of them within the Empire. These Commissioners, who devote their entire time to the furtherance of Canada's industrial interests abroad, are selected by examination from Canadian university graduates, and specially trained to undertake the work they have to do as Canada's trade representatives abroad. Their duties are to increase the export trade of Canada; to link up the Canadian exporter with the foreign importer; to study conditions and needs of the territories where they are located; to make direct enquiries or conduct preliminary surveys regarding the potential market for any product, reporting the exact kinds of goods wanted, competition to be met, and the best methods of packing, shipping and billing. Their services are always at the disposal of firms and individuals interested in Canada's trade expansion.

All trade developments the world over are being constantly reported by these Commissioners to the Commercial Intelligence Section of the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. This information is always available, and enquiries from Canadian manufacturers, and others interested, on any phase of export trade are welcomed.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics, which operates under the Department of Trade and Commerce, supplies an analytical survey of statistics which forms the background of practically all industrial enterprise in Canada. The Bureau maintains this continuous analysis of facts and figures, constantly up to date, its numerous publications covering every important phase of the Dominion's growth or development, week by week, month by month, year by year. Its "Monthly Review of Business Statistics" is a particularly valuable analysis from the business man's standpoint. The Canada Year Book, which is published by the Bureau, is possibly the most valuable compendium of information on the business of Canada, viewed from every possible standpoint, that can be obtained; it is the text book of Canadian economic progress.

Other activities of the Department of Trade and Commerce include: the constant study of world tariffs and their application to Canadian trade; the inspection of gas and electrical appliances; the subsidizing of steamship services towards the development of new markets; the advertising of the Dominion by motion picture films, by pictorial matter and by written copy; the grading and weighing of our wheat crops; the popularizing of Canadian products in the markets of Great Britain and elsewhere through the work of its Exhibition Commission in co-operation with its Publicity Branch; and a great many other services calculated to expand internal and external commerce.

FINE PROGRESS MADE OUT OF DEPRESSION

Employment in the logging industry was at a high point on the latest date, indicating a busy winter in the bush.

Fisheries—The total exports of fisheries products in the twelve months ended October, 1934, were $21,482,000, an increase of $2,912,000 or over 1" per cent more than in the same period ended 1933.

Mining—The half-yearly report shows the value of production of metallic and non-metallic minerals in the first half of 1934 at $131,942,000 as compared with $90,647,000 in the same period of 1933, an increase of $41,295,000 or 45½ per cent. The latest figures of production and employment in the mining industry indicate that this improvement has continued down to the present time.

Railway Traffic—The gross earnings of the Canadian lines of the Canadian National Railways, together with those of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in the first eleven months of 1934, totalled $244,314,000 as compared with $220,200,000 in the same period of 1933, an increaese of $24,114,000, or 10.9 per cent., indicating improving business. The net operating revenues of all Canadian railways in the first nine months were $29,838,000 as compared with $18,677,000 and the operating income $20,714,000 as against $10,084,000. Increased earnings were made possible by an increase of 14½ per cent. in the carloadings of revenue freight up to Dec. 1st.

Shipping—The aggregate cargo tonnage of five main ports of Canada, namely Halifax, Saint John, Quebec, Toronto and Vancouver, was 11,626,000 tons in the first ten months of 1934 as compared with 10,758,000 tons in the same period of 1933, an increase of 8 per cent.

The price of money has fallen, the yield of Ontario bonds being 3.88 per cent in November, 1934, as compared with 4.66 per cent in the same month of 1933, tending to produce a revival of productive enterprise through the providing of cheap capital.

Banking—The Canadian banks have maintained their savings deposits at a high level in spite of recent reductions in interest rates, while current loans are advancing. Savings deposits on October 31 were $20,000,000 more than at the same date of 1933. Current loans, representing investment in Canadian business, have recently advanced from $850,637,000 on July 31 to $895,729,000 on October 31, after a long and continuous decline extending over the last five years.

Employment—Reported employment during the first eleven months of 1934 has shown an increase of 15.9 per cent as compared with the same period of 1933. On November 1st, the latest date for which we have record, the reporting firms employed 937,000 persons as compared with 845,000 employed on the same date of 1933. After allowing for the addition of new firms, the gain in the index number was from 91.3 in November, 1933, to 100.2 in November, 1934, or nearly 10 per cent. This would broadly represent an increase of some 140,000 to 150,000 employees in the industrial groups covered by the monthly statistics of employment.

Conclusion—In conclusion it may be affirmed with confidence that Canada commences the new year with prospects much improved from those of any other recent year since the commencement of the depression. The realization of Imperial Preferential Trade is still progressively proceeding and furnishing Canada with a sure market on a preferential basis in the largest importing country in the world and throughout the far-flung Dominions and colonies that are so widely scattered over the whole surface of the globe. It is to be anticipated that the peace and the relative prosperity which prevails among the many peoples of all colors and creeds that dwell under the spreading folds of the Union Jack will constitute a model and a basis on which an even larger League of Nations may rest in days to come, and that the growth of intra-Empire trade will be followed by the growth of general international trade, based upon increasing confidence in the maintenance of international peace and goodwill.

8 NEW YEAR'S BABES ARRIVE VIA MR. STORK

First Arrival Is 8-Pound Girl to Mrs. Eni Koziol at 1:10 p.m.

Away to a flying start, the stork brought eight babies to Edmonton during New Year's day. Showing excellent impartiality, the sexes were evenly divided. The total is double the number born on the same day last year and is the largest total in four years.

The first arrival was an eight-pound girl to Mrs. Eni Koziol at the Misericordia hospital at 1.10 a.m. A little less than two hours later Mrs. L. Dennis, 12310 85 Street gave birth to a nine-pound, six ounce boy at the Royal Alexandra hospital.

THIRD 8-POUND BOY

The third to arrive in 1935 was a son weighing eight pounds, four ounces, born to Mrs. C. H. Walford, 9316 80 avenue.

A resident of Leduc, Mrs. Koziol is 35 years old. The baby is her eighth child, only four of whom are living. Hospital authorities state that both mother and daughter are doing well.

Dr. J. Verchomin attended Mrs. Koziol, and nurses Margaret Brown, Cowell and McGill assisted at the arrival of Edmonton's first 1935 baby.

STORK RETURNS

During the afternoon the stork again returned bringing a daughter to Mrs. Josephine Leonard, 9428 111 avenue at the Misericordia hospital at 2:50.

At 5:50 p.m. the fifth baby, a girl was born to Mrs. Albert Koch, Strathcona, in the General hospital, while at the same institution another girl was born at 7.30 to Mrs. Valentine Lutz, Morinville.

At the University hospital at 8 o'clock a son arrived to Mrs. George Brown, sub P.O. 9, while the last to arrive was a son to Mrs. A. J. Bull, Namao, born at the Royal Alexandra hospital at 9:00 p.m.

PARIS ENJOYED "BUBBLY" TIME

PARIS, Jan. 2.—Parisians, with their heads aching from one of the wildest New Year's eve celebrations of the depression days, tottered about the city yesterday exchanging their traditional calls and gifts.

Friends called on each other; the national cabinet called on President Lebrun; President Lebrun called on parliament; everybody drank everybody's health in champagne.

A lot more champagne was drunk Monday night, however, in this capital of celebration centres. The dawn of the New Year found many of the celebrators glum indeed.

Despite the hilarity and confusion neither persons nor property were seriously damaged.

Meat Issue Is Problem In Antipodes

CANBERRA, Australia, Jan. 2—Evidence of an uncompromising attitude of country party ministers toward the United Kingdom's request that Australia voluntarily reduce its exports of meat to Britain gave rise to belief that Thursday's cabinet meeting at Melbourne would find the coalition government seriously involved.

Ministers owing allegiance to the United Australia party were reported ready to accept temporary restrictions of the meat exports. However, in what they consider the absence of a satisfactory "quid pro quo" Minister of Commerce E. C. G. Page and his country followers appeared determined to accept no restriction and to throw upon the United Kingdom the responsibility of restricting compulsorily meat imports from the commonwealth.

Australian Race Drivers Killed

MELBOURNE, Jan. 2 — Death overtook the team of Graham and Peters yesterday in the famed New Year's Day automobile race for the Australian Grand Prix when their car skidded on a curve and overturned. Both were crushed to death beneath the wreckage.

Libby, McNeill & Libby Shows Work Increase

CHATHAM, Ont., Jan. 2—The largest payroll in the company's history during the November just passed has been announced by Leroy J. Taylor, president, and managing director of Libby, McNeill & Libby of Canada Limited, large Chatham, Ontario canning company.

"We are particularly gratified to make such an announcement at this time with public attention being centred on certain phases of industry," Mr. Taylor said. "While the November payroll is the largest in our history, being 29 per cent higher than in November of 1933, it is merely a reflection of the figures which have been shown all during the year. For the 11 months of 1934 our payroll showed an increase of 23 per cent above the first 11 months of 1933.

"I believe the figures for our own company are an indication of a general return to prosperity and that Canada has definitely emerged from the trying business conditions of the past few years."

Mr. Taylor has recently returned from a trip through the Canadian west. There he found a feeling of greater optimism than has existed for several years past. Purchasing power in the west, Mr. Taylor said, would be increased twenty-five to thirty million dollars over what it was a year ago. This added prosperity in western Canada he felt was bound to be reflected in all Canadian business.

MINE MARKET CLOSES STRONG

TORONTO, Jan. 2.—Bullish tendencies in a number of the medium-price and penny gold shares gave the mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange a generally strong appearance in its opening session of 1935.

Pickle Crow advanced 17 cents to 2.49. God's Lake 10 at 2.21 and gains of 2 to 5 cents were registered for Central Patricia, McKenzie, Macassa, Siscoe and Reno. Bradian was soft, losing 20 cents to 2.70, Coniarum Cariboo and Little Long Lac all took small losses.

Heavy snowfalls in eastern Canada, which have interfered with telegraph services, cut off communication from Toronto about 1 p.m., E.S.T., two hours before the close of the stock markets, when all wires were down between Toronto and Sudbury. The quotations listed here are the last board prices.

STOCK MART SHOWS SOME SIGNS LIFE

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—The stock market showed some signs of life in the latter part of today's session, after milling about apathetically in the early hours, and moderate recoveries were registered by a number of the leaders.

Soft spots were in evidence however, and the close was rather irregular. Transfers approximated 850,000 shares.

First-Footing Custom of Canny Scots

LOSSIEMOUTH, Scotland, Jan. 2—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald arose early New Year's morning, although the ancient Scottish custom of "first footing" his friends had kept him up very late.

Before setting out on his expedition of placing his foot first across the threshold of the friends' homes the prime minister himself was first-footed by an elderly fisherman who lives next door to him.

A reporter asked a woman neighbor why she had not first-footed Mr. MacDonald and she explained that to do so would not have been lucky. "It must be a man," she said, "and he must have dark-colored hair."

WHEAT PRICES DRIFT LOWER AT WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, Jan. 2.—Wheat prices drifted lower on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today, reacting to downturns at Liverpool. Values closed a dull session ⅛ cent lower, May at 82⅞ and July 83⅜ cents.

With traders taking little interest in the market and no support apparent, only a minimum of selling was required to send values downgrade. Hedging sales, against country receipts of only 212,000 bushels of wheat over the holiday, were too much for the slim support.

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—At the close of 1934, the international price of wheat was declining but still it was higher than at the end of 1933. Foreign buying of overseas wheat did not improve as was expected, but the outlook for this year is much better, with some importing countries more inclined to buy wheat from countries taking their commodities or manufactured articles. Market fluctuations during the three winter months to come will be governed by the offerings of southern hemisphere wheat and the buying power in Europe and non-Europe. The gradual disappearance of home grown wheat should ultimately result in a better foreign demand but financial conditions in central Europe are still unsatisfactory and until these improve, there is little likelihood of any sustained buying. North American wheat and flour shipments in the first six months of the 1934-35 season total 92,636,000 bushels compared to 114,528,000 a year ago.

PATS and PANS by BILL LEWIS

To use an ancient and stereotyped expression, Henry J. Roche and Art Gagne were wearing the "smiles that won't come off" yesterday after their Eskimos had raced to a 6-0 win over Calgary. . . . It was a sweet sort of victory for the Igloomen and the new club bosses enjoyed it to the full. . . . It seemed to give them new confidence for the future; more hope that they will yet have a real contender for Northwestern Hockey League honors. . . .

There was, apparently, nothing that the Esks could do wrong yesterday. . . . They were determined to start off the New Year right and made no mistake about it. . . . The revamped Eskimo eaters skated like blazes; they fought like caged tigers just let loose; and, too, showed the scoring punch of a championship club in driving six goals past the tall but rat-like figure of the sad but dynamic Mr. Timmins, who is known as Samuel to his pals.

Manager Gagne is gradually adding the material that really counts to his roster. . . . Max Sutherland, when he gets into his best condition, should be a valuable wingman; Steve Nickarz has already proved that he is just that if he continues to play the same brand of hockey he has already shown. . . . With a couple of more additions, the Esks will have a really high-powered minor league hockey squad.

Remember the Tulsa Business College basketball team that came here to play the Grads? Well, here's a greeting their president sends along:

"Dear Bill: The T. B. C. Stenos wish you and all good basketball fans in Edmonton a very prosperous New Year. We will never forget the kind treatment we received in your fair city. We hope the Grads will have the best team in their history this year. Our team lost several of their best players to other clubs, but we hope to have a good line-up again. Have won games in Little Rock, Memphis, Tupelo, Topeka, Des Moines, Joplin and Kansas City. Best wishes. — Maxwell Smith."

Red Beattie was one local boy who really "went to town" yesterday as the New Year was ushered in. . . . The fiery-thatched forward added no less than four points to his scoring average as Boston was whipping New York Rangers by 5-2. . . . That's a nice day's work in any company.

Rivals for honors since the season began, Edmonton Athletic Club and Canadians tangle in a Junior City League game tonight and plenty of fireworks should result. . . . The Canucks, making a strong bid for honors, want to keep out in front of the puck if at all possible, while the E.A.C. entries realize that they need to start marking up some victories if they hope to finish on top at the end of the schedule.

LONDON WHIPS OLYMPICS, 6-2

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 2.—London Tecumsehs celebrated New Year's in real fashion by trouncing Detroit Olympics, 6-2, in an International hockey league game staged before a crowd of 2,500 spectators here last night. Bernie Brophy registered two goals for the winners while Sammy Godin, Speedy Groh, Benny Ward and Eddie Ouellette contributed with single counters. Conny King and "Yip" Foster registered the goals for the Olympics.

Locals Register Shutout Triumph By Score Of 6-0

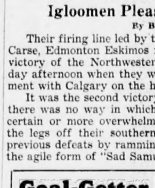
Bill Carse Outstanding Scoring Star with Three Goals for Esks; Performance of Igloomen Pleases Holiday Crowd

By BILL LEWIS

Their firing line led by the sharpshooting of bustling Bill Carse, Edmonton Eskimos romped to their most convincing victory of the Northwestern Hockey league season yesterday afternoon when they wound up their scheduled engagement with Calgary on the heavy end of the 6-0 score.

It was the second victory of the winter for the Esks and there was no way in which it could have been made more certain or more overwhelming. The locals literally skated the legs off their southern rivals and made up for eight previous defeats by ramming an even half dozen goals past the agile form of "Sad Samuel" Timmins.

Goal-Getter



BILL CARSE.

left wing star on the Rinstad-Gagne-Carse line was a real goal-getter in Eskimo's 6-0 triumph over Calgary here New Year's day. Carse got three goals, one of them on a penalty shot and along with Art Gagne and Morey Rinstad, he was a great star in the triumph.

PLENTY OF ACTION FOR HOLIDAY CROWD

Played before a holiday crowd of 2,500, the contest produced action aplenty from beginning to end, as well as turning out a scoring star of shining brilliance in the person of Bill Carse. The former junior left-wing star laced home a trio of goals, including one on a penalty shot, and generally stood out as an ace of the first water all afternoon.

The gathering got a real eyeful from the exhibition of the re-vamped and rejuvenated Eskimos. Every member of the club played his head off in every period and never once did the team show a sign of letting up. The first-string line of Manager Art. Gagne, Morey Rinstad and Bill Carse gave a sparkling display of offensive hockey, while Steve Nickarz and Max Sutherland, new members of the sub forward line, showed plenty of promise. The defence and Goalie Herb Rheaume were much improved over the last time out.

GIVES FANS "KICK"

The assemblage got a real "kick" out of proceedings when the Igloo-man, after out-playing the Calgarians for the greater part of the way, took a 1-0 lead midway through the second period and then rattled home no less than five goals in the concluding session. The last period assault had the folks on their feet yelling for more as the team gave a great display of attacking power.

Two penalty shots were awarded the Esks during the 60 minutes of action and Bill Carse, taking them both, made good one each time.

After a rather passive first frame, in which there was a lot of fast skating but no scoring, Eskimos rushed out in front following 12 minutes of furious hockey in the middle period. Carse was the man to put his team in the lead, getting the puck in the centre zone when both clubs were a man apiece on penalties. He worked through the defen. and back-handed a shot past Timmins. The score was almost wild at the score, coming as it did after the left-winger had just been sent out of the rink on a penalty drive earlier in the period.

GAGNE'S GREAT GOAL

The counter of Carse was the only one of the second game, but four minutes after the third session got under way Manager Art. Gagne put his Eskimos further ahead. He tallied their second marker of the day on a beautiful solo rush, split-ting the Calgary defence before beating Timmins on a close-in shot.

Half-way through the period, Carse put the Esks in the lead 3-0 when he rifled the puck into the twine of the Calgary citadel on an awarded penalty shot. This came after Gagne had been tripped when right through the southerners' defence on a play with Carse.

This was the signal for a lot of fast scoring by the Esks. Sutherland and Redpath teamed up for the fourth goal of the day, with the new wingman doing the shooting. Forty seconds later Nickarz, the checking-mainder, Carse wound up the scoring a few minutes from the finish when he slashed in Redpath's pass-out from behind the cage.

All in all, it was a game that kept the customers interested at all times and gave them plenty to enthuse over.

COMMERCIAL ICE LEAGUE ASSURED

CHARLOTTETOWN, Jan. 2.—Hockey promoters here intimated last night it was almost definite Charlottetown, Moncton and Saint John clubs would retain their imported players and declare for commercial competition outside the jurisdiction of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Their decision is expected to be announced tomorrow at a meeting in Moncton, which will be attended by A. R. Simmonds of Charlottetown.

Manager Jack Conn of the Halifax Wolverines, who has a strong team eligible for Allan cup play, is reported to be "sitting tight" to wait the Canadian amateur championships in the Nova Scotia capital. Cutting loose from the other three clubs, Conn is expected to keep his team occupied with exhibition games and it is said he is considering application for permission to tour Europe.

Henry H. Daniels, Jr., of Choate school, annexed the National boys' crown when he rallied to defeat Arthur C. Nichols, Jr., of Newtiter township H.S. Winnetka. After losing the first set 10-12, Daniels breezed through at 6-0, 6-0.

Stars In Majors

Gus Marker, former Camrose hockey player, who starred in Edmonton senior hockey a few years ago, is making a big splash in the big time league. Marker is a smart, aggressive wingman and supplies plenty of punch to Maroons' attacks. He and Herb Cain landed berths on the Maroon roster when the rookies, Webster and McManus, of last year's Moncton Hawks, revealed a need for further seasoning to fit them for the major league.

Led by Brian Hextall, the former Portage La Prairie Junior who is making good in a big way in his first season as a professional, the Lions scored once in the first period, battled through a tough middle session, and added three counters in the final period.

Lude Palm, blonde right winger, marred the opening goal late in the first period. Hextall added the second after two minutes of play in the last period. Just before mid period Clint Smith, the league's leading scorer, picked up the puck at his own blue line and slid it past McCusker.

Hextall repeated in the last five minutes of play.

Alabama Gridders Defeat Stanford In Great Battle

Eighty-Five Thousand See Winners Get 22 Points in Great Rally for Triumph of 29-13 at Rose Bowl,

ROSE BOWL, Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 2—Aerial slight of hand met football power on the ground Tuesday and 85,000 excited spectators saw legerdemain win as Alabama defeated Stanford 29-13.

The visitors from the South put on the greatest exhibition of forward passing seen in the 40-year history of the annual competition in the Rose Bowl.

The winners had nothing to match the frenzied aerial drive of the losers, but they tossed the ball with an accuracy that left the record-breaking crowd — and Stanford players — gasping for breath. The Crimson compiled the amazing record of completing 16 out of 13 attempted passes for a total of 216 yards.

OVERHEAD ATTACK

With the exception of one 67-yard sprint for a touchdown by Millard "Dixie" Howell, all the counters were scored or made possible by the astonishingly effective overhead attack.

Howell scored two touchdowns, half of his team's total. There was nothing Stanford could do about Howell's deadly pitching as he threw strikes most of the afternoon.

To complete a busy day, Howell did some sensational punting.

Alabama won the game in a loaded second period. Stanford led by virtue of a first period touchdown when without warning the game exploded in the Indians' faces. In 5.5 minutes the lads from Tuscaloosa piled up 22 points—three touchdowns and a field goal.

Bobby Grayson's driving power was the big cog in Stanford's offensive and the visitors were never able to stop the big boy with the piston-like legs. Stanford showed the old football adage that touchdowns cannot be made on running plays the length of the field was all wrong. The Alabama did it once and almost repeated.

E.A.C.'S MEET CANADIAN SIX HERE TONIGHT

Edmonton Athletic Club Must Win to Keep in Thrilling Race

Needing a triumph in order to stay within striking distance of the league-leading Safeway Canadians, the second place Edmonton Athletic Club will be desperately seeking a triumph in tonight's Junior League clash at the Arena. E.A.C.'s meet those leading Canadians and the battle is a crucial one for both teams.

Canadians now have a lead of four points over E.A.C. and two more points in a triumph tonight would look mighty good on their win column and would give them a comfortable margin of six points—a margin hard for the other two teams to catch up on.

The Canadians have won three straight games, while the E.A.C. squad has lost two in a row and they hope to be able to come out of their slump and "take" Coach Kelly Grove's orange and black brigade.

The action starts at 8 o'clock with Clarence Campbell refereeing.

Toronto Marathon Runner Triumphs

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 2—Wilfred McClusky, star of the Toronto Monarch Athletic Club won the annual 10-mile road race here yesterday after one of the closest struggles in years of road-racing. McClusky galloped over the ice-coated roads and bucked a strong wind for the first five miles of the journey in 56 minutes and 33 seconds, 7 seconds in front of "Whitey" Seridan of Hamilton.

INNISFAIL HAS 3-3 DEADLOCK AT RED DEER

Play 70 Minutes in Hard Battle, but Fail to Break Tie

RED DEER, Jan. 2.—Innisfail and Red Deer teams provided holiday entertainment here on Tuesday afternoon when they battled 70 minutes to a 3-3 tie in an exhibition game. There was a good crowd present and the teams displayed interesting hockey.

The southern squad drew first blood in the opening stanza when Kirkham took a bouncing pass from Thompson and drove it past the local goalie. Barely three minutes later, Hayhoe picked up a pass from Simiuk and rifled it into the net from a face-off near the Innisfail goal. Red Deer had the best of play in this canto and were often dangerous as their combination attack carried them into the visitors' end of the ice.

Innisfail found their feet in the middle stretch and uncorked some neat passing plays to be a constant threat. They broke through often to test Thomas in the local nets. Halfway through the chapter Smith scored on a long shot to put the visitors ahead. Red Deer seemed to be disorganized for a time and had many anxious moments as Innisfail hammered away on the offensive. With the period about 15 minutes old, Red Deer snapped back into the fray with a nifty combination play which tied the game up. Hayhoe and Simiuk paired up to get inside the blue line where Simiuk relayed a fine lone pass to his mate. The best hockey of the game was seen in this period and both teams gave a fine display of stick-handling and passing. The net minders also showed some pretty work.

There was speedy hockey packed into the third frame and the teams began to use their weight. Both defence lines handed out stiff jolts. Red Deer launched some fierce rushes at the start of the period and had the southerners in a bad way for a time. The teams worked back to play every hockey again. No change resulted in the score and the game went into overtime.

Within a minute of the start of the first five minutes of overtime, Red Deer stepped into a lead. Vraenchert came down the left fence alone and his low shot beat the goalie. The advantage was not for long as Innisfail came back with a bang and Thomson slapped in the rubber. The balance of the game was hard fought but neither team could tally again.

LINEUP

Innisfail—Goal, Cuthy; defence, Hall, Perry; forwards, Smith, Thomson, Kirkham, Carter, Mallinson, McKay.

Red Deer—Goal, Thomas; defence, Sinclair, Lee, Taylor; forwards, Burns, Lee, Cox, Blader, Simiuk, Hayhoe, Vraenchert.

Referee—Jack Ainsworth of Edmonton.

DRUMHELLER HAS TRIUMPH OVER BRONKS

Miners Defeat Calgary by 4-2 Score to Retain Leadership

DRUMHELLER, Jan. 2.—Drumheller Miners celebrated the New Year by holding their position as leaders in the Southern Alberta Senior Hockey league. They defeated Rosie Helmer's Bronks by 4-2 in the best and fastest hockey game of the season. The game was a triumph for Miners' goalie, Jimmy MacNamara, who turned aside certain goals as the Bronk aggregation barged down repeatedly in the second and third frames in their efforts to pull up from behind.

Miners were four in the lead up to 10 minutes of the sandwich frame when Hill scored a lucky counter after MacNamara had cleared Peter Paul's shot, the rubber rebounding off the stick of the Bronk defence man.

Two minutes after the third period opened, Bronks recorded their second tally, Adam centering to Bill Creighton.

START OUT STRONG

Play from the first was speedy, with both teams showing excellent combination. Penalties were rare and for minor infringements only. With Hill in the coop for tripping Miners were forcing play, to have Chris. Sorenser and Adams stage a dangerous play in the home zone. Badger picked up a loose puck after MacNamara had skated the clear length of the ice to flip the rubber into the net corner from close to the boards for the opening counter. Three minutes later Gustason and O'Brien staged a goal rush down the centre passing for O'Brien to bulge the twine.

BROKE OUT EVEN

In the middle period the Bronks came on to equalize, MacNamara doing brilliant work between the pipes. Bannister was penalized for tripping, giving the Bronks a break but without results. Return to end to end play saw Carl Sorensen shoot for the Miner custodian to clean. Bill Wright grabbing the rubber for the lone run and a weak shot from the blue line to place the Miners in front for the day.

Gus Gustason netted the fourth tally after the Bronks had been besieging the Miner goal on a long play at seventeen minutes.

With the frame almost ended the Bronks got out of the whirlwind and opened the final period by scoring their second counter, on a rush that ran both teams dizzy. Miners unprepared to receive them.

The Bronks pushed for more tallies but had to be content to remain on the losing side.

Stevenson was injured so badly he had to be carried from the field. In the second half Ellis, Motherwell full-back and a Welsh International, and Wales were ordered off the grounds for roughing. Reid got four goals for the winners and Wilson and Harrison one apiece. Macfadyen secured Motherwell's goal.

Goalie Cockburn of the visitors was hurt during the period and was forced to leave the ice for repairs but resumed and was invincible for the rest of the period.

The third period opened with a bang, both teams giving all they had, with combination plays and solo rushes. Haverstock scored for the juniors on Burgess' pass. The Dayland team seemed to have their tempers on edge when they reverted to fisticuffs, both teams joining in one battle which necessitated police aid. TULANE BEATS TEMPLE OWLS IN GRID TILT

Green Wave Triumphs by 20-14 Score at New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 2.—Pop Warner's powerful and deceptive Temple Owls bowed before the fire and dash of Tulane's Green Wave 20-14 in the inaugural sugar bowl football game yesterday before 30,000 spectators.

Temple opened an attack of power and buckfield deception that threatened to sweep the Wave off the field and ran up a score of 14-0 but the Greenies grew fierce.

The half ended 14-7 for Temple, but the Wave was at full tide. McDaniel and Lodrigues hit the line to the 11-yard point where Bryan shot a pass over the goal line to Hardy, Tulane's star end. Mintz kicked the extra point.

But the fourth quarter brought the greatest football. Mintz threw a 27-yard pass to Hardy by Mowrey, Temple back tipped it with his fingers and the ball shot in the air. Hardy grabbed it on the 15-yard line and whirled for the goal line. He rolled over the line by scant inches with Frey hanging onto his legs. Frey and Bongiardo blocked Minis' attempted place kick for the extra point.

Kruse To Wrestle Mike Sterlich On Main Event Here

Karasick and Sam Leathers on Second Headline Go Thursday

Bob Kruse, termed "the Tornado of the Mat" will trade grips with Mike Sterlich in one of the two main events featuring Promoter Mike Cutcher's heavyweight wrestling show at the Empire Arena Thursday, January 3.

On the second main go, Al. Karasick and Sam "Legs" Leathers will battle it out, and supporting these feature events will be a strong preliminary bout between John Demchuck, local Ukrainian grappler and Gil Knutson, also a popular local product.

Kruse turned professional in 1925 shortly after winning the United States amateur heavyweight championship at Stillwater Oklahoma, where he represented the Multnomah Athletic club of Portland, Oregon.

After defeating every outstanding postman in the Pacific North West, Bob began casting about for bigger and further fields to conquer, and, in 1926 set out for Australia and New Zealand where he met and defeated some of the best wrestlers from Down Under. Returning to America, Kruse has been busy ever since.

Mike Sterlich, who opposes Kruse tomorrow night also has a wonderful record behind him, one that any wrestler has just cause to be proud of, meeting all opponents as they come, shaking up from one, and as will be noted by his recent activities in Salt Lake City, where he wrestled six matches in a row, by popular demand of the wrestling public. Mike must have what it takes to be a wrestler and crowd-pleaser.

In the other half of the double main event, Al Karasick "Russian Lion" locks horns with Sam "Legs" Leathers, California "Rubber Man." Both are fast, scientific and spectacular, and both know the wrestling game. Both can stay and hold up anytime or all the time if the cause arises, and as both are willing workers all the times, fans are looking forward to this invasion of the heavyweights with the expectancy that a special event, as both are local boys rivalry will be keen. All seats are reserved and tickets are now on sale at Mike's News Stand with ladies and children at the usual half price.

REGINA, Jan. 2.—Regina Vics outskated and outplayed their ancient rivals, the Aces, last night in a south Saskatchewan senior hockey game to win by a score of 3 to 2, lifting them into top place tie with the Aces. The Vics won, but they are not sure of victory yet, a protest, hinging on a decision by Referee Davey Davidson, having been lodged by the Aces.

The trouble occurred one minute and 20 seconds before final time, Reginald Strong skated into the dressing room. Everyone thought he had been penalized—but he hadn't. The Aces played shorthanded until Dutkowski stepped on the ice. In the succeeding tangle Referee Davidson ordered Coach Mahon off the ice, and finally called the game when Mahon demurred. The game should be played on the grounds the game was not completed.

Vics failed to score in the first, although they had a decided edge on the play. Greenwood banged in two in the second, while Armstrong and Jackett scored for the Aces within 38 seconds. Then in the third Bentley scored the winner.

LACOMBE LOSES TO WETASKIWIN

LACOMBE, Jan. 2—Wetaskiwin went home with the long end of a 4-3 score in an exhibition hockey game played with the Lacombe team here New Years afternoon. Lacombe seemed to have by far the greater number of scoring chances but failed to convert on many of them.

Bob Todd started the scoring for Lacombe on a shot on net from behind the goal mouth. Half a minute later Kerstein evened matters on a solo effort.

McMillan duplicated the scoring in the second on a rebound, McCaughterty again tying the score on another pass from Todd. In the third period Penman, McMurdo got round the defence to the left and drove in a hard shot that Haney had no chance with. Chapman and Ken Todd worked the puck down the ice that resulted in Todd's pass close in.

The third period saw plenty of close checking. Just before the final bell Brown scored on a rebound from Penman's shot. McMillan one of the Lacombe players deflected it into the net.

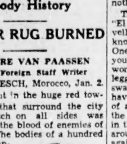
Guide Hears Spirits Wail In City Built On Skulls

Fabulously Rich Palaces Adorn Marrakesch—Has Bloody History

PRAYER RUG BURNED

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Bulletin Foreign Staff Writer

MARRAKESCH, Morocco, Jan. 2. —The cement in the huge red towered walls that surround the city of Marrakesch on all sides was mixed with the blood of enemies of the faith. The bodies of a hundred thousand captives were thrown into the imperial limekilns and baked into the bricks for the fortifications. Into the foundations of every one of the dozen city gates went a load of freshly severed heads on the principle that there is nothing like a pile of skulls to prevent a building from settling.



Pierre Van Paassen

On one night of the new moon, they say, you can hear the sighs of all those immured, entombed and decapitated infidels as they suffer the pains of the damned in the nethermost pits of hell for having rejected Mohammed. I did not hear their groans myself, although I was there at the appointed hour.

But then my ears have never become quite attuned yet to the supernatural. "Kelly," my guide and interpreter, whose real name is Moulay Youssef Sidi Hafed Mohammed Ibn Abrihim, heard them all right and he trembled like a leaf. I got him away from the place before he started to see things as well as hearing what he described as "doleful voices."

For his eyes had already begun to assume that peculiarly far-away, glassy stare of Islam when they are in the contemplative mood. In such moments those boys see exactly what they want to see. Kelly, for instance, whose father is a mullah over in Fez, is so deeply versed in Koranic lore, he is a graduate of a religious school, that he is able to furnish the most minute descriptions of heaven and of hell.

MATCH PRECIPITATES CRISIS

When he is on that subject he betrays so exact a knowledge on the inside workings of the administration of both places that I really suspect him of either having been there or of possessing blue-prints showing the layout. It's uncanny. It fills me with a sort of fearful respect for him. Even so, his habit of scratching the inside of his ear with the aid of a match got us into serious trouble this morning. We were in a famous mosque and I was inspecting the matchless porcelain mosaic of the walls, when Kelly suddenly omitted a frightful yell. The match had caught fire in his ear.

He pulled it out, of course, and threw it on the floor, where it burned a hole in a Baluchistan prayer-rug. Since Kelly fled, head over heels in the direction of the fountain in the court where the believers wash their feet before entering the mosque and dumped his head into the healing stream, all the imams, mullahs, scribes and pharisees who hang around a Moslem temple pounced on to me and stood there spluttering in throaty Arabic whilst shaking their fists.

I prepared myself for the worst. In a flash of the imagination I saw my skull going to reinforce the foundations of some Mohammedan pot-house, when Kelly fortunately returned and started to explain. The incident ended by making a donation of 10 francs to the Mohammedan Missionary Society. This was gratefully accepted. Nothing was said of the carpet which must have been worth a hundred thousand francs, if I knew anything about carpets.

CITY OF RICHES

In the meantime the suffering Kelly is being treated with ointment of which a chemist friend in Paris made me a present before departing, saying that it's good for snake-bites. It's certainly good for earache.

A fabulously rich city is Marrakesch. Sultan after sultan from the tenth century onward has endowed it with palaces, mosques, gardens and citadels, even as every French king considered it his duty to build at least one palace in or near Paris to perpetuate his name and glory. The republic in France has built nothing in comparison.

The greatest palace is that called "El Bedi", which means the Marvellous. It was built by a sultan known as El Dehebi, the Golden One. He had been a slave in his youth and was the son of a Jewish woman and a negro father. Short-legged, with an enormous head, swarthy with bulging eyes, he must have been a frightful caricature of a man. But he rose rapidly to the position of grand vizier. Once in that position he gathered a clique around him and began his intrigues against the reigning family. He arrested the sultan and had his twenty sons boiled in oil before their father's eyes. Then he had the old man put in a vat with a bunch of starved rats.

SLAUGHTERED CAPTIVES

Subsequently this ex-slave conquered Senegal all the way to Timbuctoo, where he burnt the famous libraries. Thereafter he crossed the Sahara—four and a half months of a march—and at the head of an army conquered the Soudan. The captives he shipped back to Marrakesch and made good use of their skulls.

With the gold he looted on the way, it took five hundred mules and as many camels to transport the booty he built that palace which is a city within the city. The ceilings are cedar covered with beaten gold encrusted with jewels. Cateways are of marble with golden thresholds. Some of the gold has been stripped off. Subsequent sultans did that.

The monstrous dwarf had 100,000 slaves and a bodyguard of 10,000 men. He beat Solomon by a long way in harem population. Historians assert that he had one army roaming his domains for no other purpose but to pick up beautiful girls and ship them to Marrakesch. The plague got him in the end, he and all his slaves, bodyguards and women.

WERE TORTURE EXPERTS

I recommended the reading of Moroccan history. It is the most bloody collection of chronicles in the world. The ingenuity with which those sultans thought up means of torture for their predecessors is something that freezes the imagination. One was cut into small slices. The process lasted seven days before he died. Another was put in a glass cage filled with red ants. Then his wives and concubines were invited to come and watch the delectable spectacle of the man being devoured by the insects.

They clapped their hands in delight, the historians inform us, as they saw his frightful agony. The sultan smiled contentedly and ate a choice meal sitting quite close to the cage so as not to miss a single detail. Put in at the rising of the moon, the victim was a skeleton before dawn. Another was flayed alive, then smeared with honey whereupon a score of beehives were carried in and the bees let loose to finish him.

Somebody ought to write up the Thousand One Nights of Marrakesch. I guarantee plenty of gooseflesh and I dare say Bram Stoker's "Dracula" will be surpassed in grisliness. My native modesty keeps me from mentioning the really appetizing details. Nero was a piker, Caligula a pitiful upstart. Torquemada did not know his business. But these Moroccan sultans were past-masters in the games of torture. Their imagination worked overtime. And the cake goes to El Mansour, that pot-bellied dwarf from whose harem were carried every morning the fragments of the bodies of the women he had "loved" in the night.

N. S. Fishermen Still Missing

LOCKEPORT, N.S., Jan. 2.—Hope for three missing Lockeport fishermen was abandoned last night when another gale lashed the Nova Scotia coast and prevented further search on the heaving seas. Two of three strayed from their vessels in two dories during the week-end storm that claimed the life of Alfred Doucette of Wedgeport, who was drowned when a dory capsized under the bow of the schooner Marian Emily.

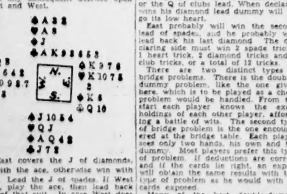
Andrew Doucette and N. Bourneau, in one dory, were separated from the schooner Dot and Hellie, while Samuel Coutreau was alone in another dory that strayed from the Lucille.

If the land surface of the earth were divided among the inhabitants, each person would receive approximately 20 acres.

CONTRACT BRIDGE
WRITTEN FOR THE BULLETIN
By E. V. SHEPARD
FAMOUS BRIDGE TEACHER

DOUBLE DUMMY PROBLEM

South is the declarer. The contract is 6 no-trumps. The opening lead is the 10 of diamonds. Lay all hands face up/card on the table. Then, for hard or a double-dummy problem, to see if you can fulfill the small slam contract against any subsequent defence open to East and West.



If East covers the J of diamonds, win with the ace, otherwise win with the Q. Lead the 4 of spades. If West covers, play low, and then lead back the 2 of that suit. In case West does not cover, let the 3 run, for East to win. If both let the trick pass, lead a small spade. Trap the Q with the ace and lead back dummy's last spade. Unless East wins the first or third round of spades the problem is solved. West may as well cover the J with his Q. It can do no good to refuse the trick. If W loses his Q, he's back the 1 of spades. East may as well win play with his K of spades at the first opportunity. It will be his only trick.

When East wins his spade trick no return lead can prevent the small slam contract. The declarer can win a spade lead, a low heart lead, the diamond lead or the 10 of clubs lead. Dummy can win the K of hearts lead or the Q of clubs lead. When declarer wins his diamond lead dummy will let go its low heart.

East probably will win the second lead of spades, and will then lead back his last diamond. The declaring side must win 2 spade tricks, 1 heart trick, 2 diamond tricks and 1 club trick, or a total of 12 tricks.

There are two distinct types of bridge problems. There is the double-dummy problem, like the one given here, which is to be played as a chess problem would be handled. From the start each player knows the exact holdings of each other player, and playing a battle of wits. The second type of bridge problem is the one encountered at the bridge table. Each player sees only two hands, his own and the dummy. Most players prefer this type of problem. It develops more science and if the cards lie right, an expert will obtain the best results from this type of problem as he would with all the cards exposed.

Many of the best double-dummy players are not particularly good players at the table. I have in mind one famous authority who made his reputation upon his ability at double-dummy play. I found him a poor player at the card table. It is improbable that any player would make a small hand at no trumps on the hand given, excepting at double-dummy play.
